TEXANS SPURN COMPROMISE WITH NEW DEAL

Insist Delegates Be Unpledged.

Austin, Tex., July 9 (AP).—Leadership of the regularly constituted Texas Democratic convention, which refused to bind its electors to vote for the party's Presidential nominee unless the Chicago convention fulfilled certain conditions, announced today it would not trade or compromise upon its position.

Regular convention delegates go to Chicago uninstructed, and its electors are bound to vote for the party nominee only if the Chicago convention restores the two-thirds rule and adopts a platform plank critical of the recent Supreme court decision giving Negroes the right to vote in the Texas Democratic primary.

"The Democratic state convention nominated Presidential electors in its customary way and the Supreme court ruled its action was completely legal," former State Sen. Roy Sanderford said.

Disputes Jesse Jones.

Sanderford in a statement released thru the state Democratic executive committee office, asserted that Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones "was in error in charging the Democratic state convention has deprived a majority of Texas voters of a right to vote for their choice of President."

Sanderford referred to an editorial signed by Jones in the Houston Chronicle of June 5. The editorial was critical of what was described as the "extreme" action taken by the regular convention, from which the pro-Roosevelt forces bolted to organize their own session. They named delegates pledged to vote for Roosevelt's renomination, and electors bound to support the party's nominees.

Speaks for Leadership.

Sanderford was permanent chairman of the convention and his statement could be taken as speaking for the leadership of the convention.

The pro-Roosevelt convention, said Sanderford, may place the names of its electors—flatly bound to vote for the party's nominees—on the November election ballot and "if this is done, every voter in Texas will have an opportunity to vote as he pleases, and any representation to the contrary is without foundation."

YEARLY SLUMP IN BRITISH COAL OUTPUT BARED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 9.—British coal output has been falling at an average rate of more than 9,000,000 tons a year during the war, it was revealed today in a white paper issued by the fuel ministry. The white paper will be the basis of a debate on fuel policy in the house of commons on Thursday.

In 1939 the output of salable coal was more than 231,000,000 tons, in 1943 only 194,500,000 tons. For the last quarter of this year it was 47,500,000, compared with 50,250,000 in the first quarter of 1943.

The reasons given for the decline are that there are fewer miners, the people are older and wearier, the progressive increase of wastage of industry's labor force, and a decline in the number of youths entering the industry. While the industry in 1938 employed 781,700 men, the number in April this year was only 703,600, of whom about 50,000 generally were ill or absent for other causes. Mine accidents have increased almost 40 per cent during the war.

Stalin Cites His Son for Gallantry in Air War

LONDON, July 9—(AP).—Premier Joseph Stalin saluted the gallantry of his own son in his Sunday night order which announced the Russians had captured the town of Lida. Col. Vassily Stalin of the soviet bomber command was cited along with other high officers for the latest achievement of the 3d White Russian army under Gen. Ivan D. Cherniakohovsky.

Tells of Vast Canada Fires of U. S. Goods

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 9.—"Denial by officials of salvage waste on the Alaska highway does not alter facts," Bruce McKelvie, special correspondent of the Daily Province, said on his return from the highway today.

Town [arrow] where writer saw dumps.

"I went to Dawson Creek, and next day to Pouce Coupe," he added. "In the bus most of the conversation was about this waste. 'I hope you'll write about it,' I was told in Dawson Creek by a man who said people there dare not mention it."

According to an article printed by the Daily Province, the salvage waste is the outcome of an agreement between Canada and the United States that equipment brought into Canada must not be sold, disposed of, or used in Canada, but must be return d to the United States or destroyed. Two high army officers have denied a report that the goods are being burned "wholesale."

"We would be glad to sell it all at salvage value," one American official told a Fort St. John reporter, "but we can't. Besides, the Canadian government would demand duty on the original price."

Needed Wares "Broken Up."

Mattresses, blankets, sleeping bags, stoves, furnaces, and crockery, all priority needs of settlers in the wilderness country, are said to have been broken up and dumped into canyons.

McKelvie said he drove around the country to see for himself.

"I saw a fire," he went on, "and asked if it was a building. I was told it was a dump that was burning night and day. A trucker was indignant about it.

"After church people discussed it. I went to Fort St. John and visited two of the dumps. I looked down at one 800 feet below the plateau where the original fort stood. The dump I saw was said to be 600 feet long. I was told it would be worth my while to climb down but time would not permit."

McKelvie said he visited the dump on the opposite shore where the Moberly enters the Peace river.

"I estimated it to be a thousand feet wide," he continued. "The top of the hill was fringed with people. The foot of the dump had the appearance of an ant heap, with men and women sorting out the material.

Stoves for the Carrying.

"A farmer proudly exhibited a big new barrel heater and a patent water heater he had recovered. He pointed to other stoves that could be seen among the poplars below. He said he would bring another stove up for anyone for $10.

"One of my friends returned from the dump. I indicated what I thought was a pile of tires. He said they were hot air chambers for furnaces and the rotten thing about it was that every one of them had been broken with a sledge hammer before being thrown onto the dump.

"What is the use of trying to deny the waste? Too many people know about it."

Hundreds Aid Firemen at $150,000 Blaze

Civilians pitched in with a will last night to help firemen fight a $150,000 fire that destroyed the Boynton & Co. plastic products manufacturing plant at 1725 Bosworth av., and an adjoining yard of the Ashland Lumber company, with offices at 1800 N. Ashland av.

Capt. Anthony Jablonski of engine company 30, burned on the hand and overcome by smoke, was the only casualty.

In the crowd of 5,000 persons who raced after more than half of Chicago's fire engines to the fire were hundreds of inveterate fire fans who generally do nothing more than clutter working aisles at a fire. But last night their effort to lend a hand was welcomed, because the firemen were obliged to stretch their hose lines across the Chicago and North Western railway tracks east of the burning factory.

Volunteers Carry Hose.

The lines tugged up to the fire front by the volunteers enabled the firemen to flank the south end of the yard, which lay between the tracks and the factory, and prevent the flames from reaching a three story war plant of the Great Lakes Plating and Japanning company at 1715 Bosworth av.

The fire originated in the lumber yard, destroying piles rising 25 feet high along the tracks. It penetrated the nearby Boynton plant, a rambling old two story brick structure occupying nearly an entire block, and swept the interior rapidly.

On top of the shell of the plant stood a water tank, which the flames reached and threatened to topple into the street. Commissioner Michael J. Corrigan had policemen disperse the volunteers as well as the spectators.

Embers Carried by Wind.

The direction of the wind carried flaming embers to the plating plant. To save this plant Corrigan turned in a 5-11 alarm, then three special calls, which summoned 70 pieces of apparatus to the fire, including 40 engines, two high pressure towers, three squads, five hook and ladder, and the fire boat Fred A. Busse.

An air compressor in the plating plant was damaged slightly by heat. Traffic in Ashland and North avs. was halted for nearly an hour as the multitude of apparatus gathered. Trains on the North Western's Wisconsin division were delayed.

ORLEMANSKI SILENT ON REPORT HE MAY VISIT VATICAN CITY

Springfield, Mass., July 9 [Special].—The Rev. Stanislaus Orlemanski, pastor of the Holy Rosary Catholic church here, said today he has no comment on reports from Vatican City that he will visit Rome soon in a private capacity.

Dispatches from the Italian capital hinted that the Polish American priest, who last April had an audience with Premier Stalin and other soviet officials in Moscow, might already be on his way abroad. Father Orlemanski's reports on his Russian visit have been carefully studied by the pontifical commission for Russia created by Pope Pius XI. in 1930, these dispatches said.

Father Orlemanski, whose unofficial venture into ecclesiastical diplomacy brought him a temporary suspension of priestly privileges after his return from Russia, said he has made no plans to visit Rome. He attended to his regular clerical duties today as usual.

CIVILIAN GOODS ORDERS MAKING SLOW HEADWAY

Washington, D. C., July 9 (AP).—Orders which would set in motion WPB Chairman Nelson's disputed plans for limited resumption of civilian goods production were reported making slow headway tonight at the war production board.

A spokesman said the orders reached WPB's orders clearance committee on Saturday—the day on which the joint army and navy chiefs of staff assailed them as a threat to war production.

The clearance committee is the final step before signature and issuance. The orders were voted down by a majority of the WPB in a full session of its military and civilian members last Tuesday.

Close associates of Nelson predicted that when he is sufficiently recovered from illness to return to work he would sign them despite army and navy opposition.

LT. COL. CARLSON ARRIVES IN U. S. FOR OPERATION

San Diego, Cal., July 9 (AP).—Lt. Col. Evans F. Carlson, marine raider leader who was wounded on Saipan, arrived here today for surgical treatment at the naval hospital.

"He walked with only a slight limp and looked as well as ever," said the colonel's mother-in-law, Mrs. Howard Carlyle Tatum.

At the naval hospital, it was reported that Carlson will have an operation on his arm which was fractured by a Japanese machine gun bullet. He also was hit in the thigh. He was wounded while attempting to rescue an injured enlisted man.

Gandhi Offers Plan to Make India 2 States

BOMBAY, July 9 (AP).—Mohandas K. Gandhi has proposed that India be partitioned into to separate Hindu and Moslem states as a means of breaking the political deadlock over India's independence.

Mohandas K. Gandhi.

Mohamed Ali Jinnah.

His plan to eliminate Moslem objections to plans for independence from British rule has been presented to Mohamed Ali Jinnah, president of the All-India Moslem league, thru Chakravarthi Rajagopalachari, former All-India Congress president.

Jinnah wrote to Rajagopalachari that the proposition will be placed before the working committee of the Moslem league, if Gandhi will make the offer direct to it.

Not in British Plan.

One of the reasons for the failure of the British plan for post-war independence of India, offered by Stafford Cripps in 1942, was Moslem insistence the plan did not insure an independent Moslem state.

The correspondence contains six points:

1. The Moslem league must cooperate with the All-India Congress in the formation of a transitional government.

Plebiscite Planned.

2. At the end of the war a plebiscite on the basis of adult franchise will be held in areas where the Moslem population is in an absolute majority.

3. It must be open to all parties to advocate their points of view before the plebiscite is held.

4. In the event of separation, a mutual agreement shall be entered into to safeguard defense, commerce and communications.

5. Any transfer of population must be on an absolutely voluntary basis.

6. The terms shall be binding only in case of a transfer by Great Britain of full power and responsibility of government to India.

Quebec Forest Fire Dies After Wiping Out Town

VAL D'OR, Que., July 9 (AP). — Forest fires which have swept the northern Quebec gold mine belt the last three days, destroying one village, tonight appeared to be dying down. Cadillac, 32 miles west of here, last night seemed likely to meet the fate of Pascalis, 16 miles northeast, which was wiped out Friday night. Tonight, however, Cadillac was said to be out of danger.

11,500 JAPS DIE IN WORST FIGHT OF PACIFIC WAR

Yanks Take Island in Four Weeks.

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, July 9 (AP).—"Our forces have completed the conquest of Saipan," Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

Organized resistance collapsed Saturday, ending a four week campaign in the Marianas Islands that has cost Japan at least 58 ships, 900 planes, and 11,500 soldiers. It was the longest, bitterest and most costly campaign of the central and western Pacific.

"Elimination of scattered, disorganized remnants of the enemy force is progressing rapidly," Adm. Nimitz said. This means the tedious process of cleaning out a few thousand enemy troops from caves and crevices still faces the marines and soldiers.

Japs Bury Many Dead.

The campaign against an estimated garrison of 20,000 Japanese lasted 25 days. Bulletins have listed a total of 11,500 Nipponese troops slain. The Yanks have found evidence the Japanese buried many of their own dead—so there is no way of estimating how many enemy combatants remain.

Carrier planes again bombed, strafed, and showered rocket bombs on Guam and Rota Islands, flanking Saipan during the last two days. They shot down nine fighters attempting to fly from Guam to Yap, destroyed six twin-engined aircraft, and probably destroyed two more on the ground near Agana on Guam.

The strategic potentialities of Saipan are perhaps the greatest of any so far attained by the United States in the Pacific. Equipped with air fields which now will need only repair and enlarging, the island is 1,260 miles from Tokyo, an easy stride for the Super Fortress bombers. It has harbor facilities capable of supplying fighting ships.

United States Casualties 9,752.

Saipan is about 1,500 miles from the enemy held Philippines and even closer to other important enemy bases such as Palau and Yap.

American casualties on Saipan thru June 28 totaled 9,752, of which 1,474 were killed.

The American forces on Saipan are made up of the 2d and 4th marine divisions and the army's 27th infantry division, a former New York National Guard outfit.

The bulletin did not disclose the number of prisoners now in the hands of the Americans.

Drop Bombs on Truk.

In the last seven months Japanese dead in fighting in the central and southwest Pacific total about 60,000, Col. Albert L. Warner, director of the war branch of the army's bureau of public relations, said in an Army Hour broadcast from Washington.

Twenty-two tons of bombs were dropped on Truk atoll Friday night by Liberators. There was no interception. Mili, Jaluit, Taroa, and Wotje atolls in the Marshalls were harassed by dive bombers and fighters of the 4th marine aircraft wing.

Kill 213 More on Biak.

ALLIED HDQ., New Guinea, July 10 [Monday]—(AP).—Mopping-up battles in which American troops are hunting down enemy remnants on Biak Island cost the Japanese an additional 213 dead last week.

Headquarters announced today that minor engagements in the Schouten Islands had brought the total enemy casualties since the start of the Biak campaign May 27 to 3,268.

The Japanese, attempting to strike back at the American built airdrome on OWI Island five miles from Biak Thursday night sent two single-engine bombers over, causing some casualties. One of the bombers was shot down by an allied night fighter.

Rabaul again was raided with 103 tons of bombs. Other Southwest Pacific planes attacked Palau and Woleai in the Carolines, Buka, Bougainville, and New Ireland, and dropped 58 tons of bombs in the Wlovak area of New Guinea.

Robot Wrecks Noted Chapel During Service

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 9.—The famous century old royal military chapel known as the Guards' chapel in Wellington barracks, near Buckingham palace, was demolished by a flying bomb during a recent Sunday morning service, it was revealed today. Few of the congregation of 180, most of whom were civilians, escaped death or injury.

Censorship permitted mention of two other buildings hit by flying bombs. They were the Regents Palace hotel in Picadilly Circus, where one woman was killed, and the bankruptcy court in Carey st., west central London. Two clerks on fireguard duty and a woman cleaner were killed at the bankruptcy court.

A fresh barrage of the flying bombs hit London and southern England today causing more casualties.

The bomb that struck the Guards' chapel, it was revealed, crashed thru the roof and exploded in the aisle in the center of the congregation. The roof, with its heavy reinforced concrete supports and part of the walls collapsed. Masonry, timber, and glass tumbled down on the congregation.

Door Pillars Topple.

Two of the four massive doric pillars over the west door toppled over and dragged the portico with them. Only the apse at the east end remained.

The explosion came just as Lt. Col. Edward Hay of the Grenadier guards had walked to the lectern to read the first lesson. His body was found where he had been struck down while reading. Under the wreckage lay many of the worshippers and a chaplain, the Rev. Ralph H. Withrow.

As the engine of the flying bomb cut out, the king's guard of 86 men had just been brought to attention. The bomb rushed down and burst with a shattering roar only 10 yards away. The guardsmen, none of whom was injured, joined in the rescue work.

The white robed bodies of the choristers were found in the smashed choir stalls. The bodies of the bandsmen of the Coldstream guards, who had been playing for the service from the gallery, were strewn in the debris, still grasping their instruments.

Bishop Escapes Death.

Among those who escaped was the bishop of Maidstone, Dr. Leslie Owen, who was to have preached. He collapsed from shock. None of the altar furniture—the tall silver candlesticks, silver altar book and alms dish—was damaged or even knocked from the altar.

It was announced today that 50,500 children had been evacuated from London since Wednesday. Nine thousand more are due to go tomorrow.

Deep Shelter Opened.

The first of London's deep shelters was opened tonight. Tickets were distributed last night entitling the holders to a bunk which may be used between 6 p. m. and 8 a. m.

The amount of bedding which shelter users may bring with them is restricted to a mattress no larger than six feet by two feet six inches and a maximum of three blankets and two pillows, which may be left in the bunk. Tea will be served, but the shelterers must bring their own crockery. Other deep shelters are to be opened within the next few days.

CENTER PUSH BY AMERICANS GAINS GROUND

British Mopping Up Pocketed Foe.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, July 10 [Monday].—Caen, the most important road junction in Normandy, was captured by British and Canadian troops yesterday in a massive 36 hour assault. British troops driving down from the north were first into the town which has held out since June 6. Then the Canadians crashed in from the west.

At the western end of the Normandy front, United States troops, after a five day siege, stormed and captured La Haye du Puits, a highway hub and vital rail junction of the Cherbourg peninsula.

The anchor positions of Caen and La Haye were won against fierce German resistance. Enemy casualties were said to be high. Hundreds of prisoners were pouring into the British and Canadian pens.

Fight in Rain and Mud.

La Haye fell to the Americans after stiff hand to hand fighting in rain and mud. The Americans then drove on two miles to the south, coming within three miles of Lessay, the western terminus of the lateral highway to St. Lo.

The capture of La Haye gave the Yanks the Barneville-Caen railway junction and the junction of the Barneville-Carentan and St. Sauveur-Lessay road.

Tanks, tank destroyers and heavy artillery were required to support the bayonet wielding, grenade hurling Americans in their house-by-house conquest of La Haye, which the Germans had sought to hold as the controling position of the west coast road network. The town already had been by-passed on both sides.

Heavy fighting went on near Gerville at the southern edge of the Mont Castre forest, where a battalion of German paratroopers made savage attempts to halt the American drive.

Farther to the east, the Americans advancing from Carentan toward Periers pushed back a strong German attack and gained one to three miles in reaching the outskirts of Sainteny, Les Omeau, one and one-half miles to the north, was captured and Sainteny was threatened from two sides.

Drive Four Miles in Center.

Progress was steady along the whole of the American sector and in one area the Yanks had driven four miles into the center of the enemy's Normandy front.

The doughboys won more than 18 square miles of territory around captured St. Jean de Daye. They pushed westward one and one-half miles and captured Le Mesnil-Veneron. Another column, thrusting down a side road southwest of St. Jean, reached the edge of Le Desert, and still another spearhead was within a mile of St. Lo-Carentan highway.

To the east of the American sector, British troops advanced a mile and a half and captured Granville-la-Croix, six miles northeast of Caumont, and Landes. A German tank and infantry counter-attack was driven back.

British and Canadian troops won definite control of Caen at 2 p. m. yesterday and by nightfall held a solid front north of the Orne river from Herouville on the east thru Caen to a point near the junction of the Orne and Odon rivers, southwest of Caen.

Snipers Active in City.

Caen was in shambles and nothing could move thru the city except infantry and bulldozers, a dispatch from the front said. A British staff officer said Germans snipers "were still making pests of themselves."

Canadians captured the long contested Carpiquet airdrome west of the city and then pushed on, taking Bretteville.

Seven more towns forming the inner line of Caen's defense perimeter fell to the British as they closed on the city, making 16 taken in 24 hours. The seven were Couvrechef Bitot, Cussy, Francqueville, St. Germain la Blanche, Herbe, Verson, and Fontaine-Etoupefour.

In their advance the British bypassed many pockets of resistance inside and outside the city and they are being cleaned up. The capture of Caen cut off the remnants of a division and a half of enemy troops in pockets of resistance now behind the allied lines or serving as snipers in Caen's wreckage. Most of these holdouts were reported trapped in a two square mile area northwest of Caen.

The British position across the Orne river northeast of Caen also has been widened and strengthened. The fall of Caen may bring on a big tank battle, since Caen is the gateway to a wide rolling plain suitable for armored warfare.

Caen is of two fold importance to the allies. It is the hub of 12 major roads, and by virtue of the canal which links it with the sea at Ouistreham, it was the seventh port of France before the war, capable of handling as much, if not more, cargo than Cherbourg.

Some time will be required to restore the port of Caen. Two ships were sunk in the canal and the locks and harbor have been heavily shelled and bombed.

Supported by 3 Warships.

In attempting to hinder the allied advance from Caen, the Germans opened the sluice gates at Cabourg, on the Dives river 13 miles to the northeast, and let in the sea.

Allied artillery support during the Caen attack was intense, and was powerfully reinforced by the 16 inch guns of the British battleship Rodney, the 15 inch guns of the monitor Roberts, and the 6 inch guns of the cruiser Belfast.

Flyers returning from sorties over the front reported that for miles behind the German lines, the roads were jammed with thousands of civilians, apparently evacuating the towns and villages immediately south of the battle area.

The German news agency DNB in a broadcast said 12 allied infantry and tank divisions took part in the assault on Caen.

Say U. S. Has 12 Divisions.

New York, July 9 (AP).—The Berlin radio, in a broadcast recorded by NBC, said tonight that the Americans now had 12 divisions in Normandy, five of them being freshly landed and not yet employed in battle.

OFFICIAL BULLETINS

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, July 9 (AP).—The text of war bulletin No. 68 issued tonight said:

"The town of Caen has been liberated. Many pockets of enemy resistance remain, but these are being systematically dealt with. Local gains have been made in the Odon [river] bridgehead and in the Caumont-Tilly sector.

"In the base of the Cherbourg peninsula German resistance in La Haye du Puits was crushed after the town had been by-passed on both sides.

"Some ground also has been gained toward Sainteny, altho enemy resistance is intense, both in this area and beyond St. Jean de Daye.

"Heavy bombers attacked the air field at Chateaudun and bridges in the Tours area. This morning escorting fighters shot down one enemy aircraft and bombed and strafed ground targets including locomotives, rolling stock and motor transport.

"Medium bombers, one of which is missing, attacked a fuel dump at Rennes and a road bridge south of Orleans. They were escorted by fighters which also bombed gun positions south of Rennes and near St. Malo.

"Naval patrols made contact with groups of enemy E-boats off the mouth of the Seine early on Saturday morning. During the actions which followed two E-boats were severely damaged and one was set on fire before the enemy escaped into Le Havre.

"Early this morning destroyers on patrol sighted and chased a force of five armed trawlers off Cape Frehel. The enemy force escaped inshore under shelter of shore batteries, but not before they had received serious punishment."

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

Sunday's German war bulletin as broadcast by Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press in New York said:

"The enemy opened a large scale attack in Normandy against a front sector jutting out north of Caen on a wide front with strong infantry and tank formations. In heavy fighting which increased in intensity in the course of the day the enemy suffered particularly high casualties.

"After bringing up fresh forces the enemy eventually succeeded in entering positions northeast and northwest of Caen. On both sides of the Caumont-Caen road the enemy also made strong attacks after heavy artillery preparation. He succeeded in obtaining local dents which meanwhile have been cut off.

"Bitter fighting was in progress all day long between the Vire and Taute [rivers]. Under heavy losses the enemy succeeded here in extending somewhat his bridgehead beyond the Vire southwestward. Fighting here is also still in full swing.

"Northwest of Le Plessis and southwest of La Haye du Puits the enemy made several vain attacks.

"One hundred and ninety-eight terrorists were annihilated in fighting in the French area. One cruiser and one destroyer were sunk by weapons of the German navy in the waters of the invasion front. Several other ships were torpedoed.

"Heavy retaliatory fire continues over London and outer districts."

Conqueror's Caen Famed for Its Churches and Applejack

Caen, the ancient capital of William the Conqueror, is famous for its two great abbey churches of cathedral proportions which were built in the 11th century, and which, with its other fine buildings have caused Caen to be called the Norman Athens, and in the epicurean domain for its applejack called Calvados, and its "tripe a la mode de Caen."

The churches are the church of St. Etienne, or St. Stephen, better known as l'abbaye aux hommes or the abbey of the monks, and La Trinite church, better known as l'abbaye aux dames or the abbey of the nuns.

St. Stephen's church contained the tomb of the Conqueror until his bones were scattered by the Huguenot uprising in the 16th century. The remains of his wife, Queen Matilda, repose in her tomb in the church of the nuns.

Gothic Architecture.

These great churches with their adjacent monastery buildings are considered the birthplace of Gothic architecture. In the monks' church, which antedates the other by some years, Gothic for the first time began to take definite form. It can almost be seen to be growing out of the great Romanesque foundations and massive walls. In the nuns' church the new Gothic form, which was to revolutionize church architecture for one thousand years, made greater advances.

In this sense Caen may be considered the birthplace of New York's St. Patrick's Cathedral or the cathedral of St. John the Divine.

Antiquaries Museum.

In medieval times churches were built to serve the double purpose of religion and of defense. These churches and others in the city have massive walls several feet thick.

The nuns' church is about midway up the city's slope where it rises from the Orne river. The monks' church is near the crest.

The antiquaries' museum is also in the elevated part of the town. It is housed in the old College of the Mountain built in the 14th century. It contained specimens of architecture and sculpture, some dating from Norman times.

This Norman Athens, with a peace time population of about 54,000, is in fact a city of churches, castles, and ancient mansions. These, some of which occupy commanding positions on the heights, together with the city's narrow streets flanked by ancient stone buildings, made of the entire city a natural citadel.

Capital of Applejack.

Caen might also be called the world's capital of applejack, which takes its name, Calvados, from the Calvados department of which Caen is the government seat. It comes in all ages and strengths and is sold in fantastically decorated earthen jugs with stoppers shaped and colored like the varieties of apples for which the region is famous. It is common to find applejack 20 to 30 years old, and occasionally a jug turns up with the 50 year mark.

"Calvados" is noted as the most powerful drink in all France.

The "tripe a la mode de Caen" goes with applejack. It is a heavy but delicious dish prepared with sauces and garnishments and sold by the shops in earthen casseroles. No hotel or restaurant menu is complete without this dish. The restaurants of Paris and, in fact of all parts of France feature it with considerable frequency, but none of them ever succeeds in elaborating it with just the right consistency and savor as do the restaurants of Caen.

JUST LIKE A G.I. EISENHOWER IS EAGER FOR MAIL

Fort Benning, Ga., July 9 (AP).—Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, wife of the supreme allied commander in the European theater, said today her husband's "morale is no different from that of a G. I.; he keeps his ear cocked for mail call, too."

Arriving here yesterday with her son, 2d Lt. John Eisenhower, who has been assigned to a special basic officers course at the infantry school, Mrs. Eisenhower said she writes to her husband regularly.

"Letters are by far one of the most satisfying ingredients for a soldier's morale," she said.

BATTLESHIP BEACHED; 10 SHIPS SUNK IN 10 MINUTES, NAZI CLAIM

LONDON, July 9 (AP).—The German radio reported today that an allied battleship had been hit by bombs and beached off the Orne estuary in Normandy, and the German controled Paris radio asserted the Nazis had sunk 10 allied ships in 10 minutes with a new secret weapon.

There was no confirmation of these reports or of an additional claim by the German high command to have sunk an allied cruiser and a destroyer with "weapons of the German navy." A spokesman at allied headquarters said he had no knowledge of any new Nazi naval weapon. The Paris radio said the beached battleship was the 22,189 ton Courbet, a 1913 model French vessel.

The Paris radio commentator "Paquis" commenting on "vengeance weapon No. 2," said, "V-2 may be a magic torpedo which can sink 10 ships in as many minutes. German naval craft on Thursday sank one cruiser, three destroyers, and six merchant ships in almost as many minutes. It is believed that these successes are the result of a new weapon. Is it a new torpedo or a new type submarine? Berlin military circles are silent, but the results speak for themselves, and we shall doubtless hear more about it."

TWO SPIES TRIED IN FIRST COURT OF FREED FRANCE

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CHERBOURG, France, July 8 [Delayed].—For the first time on French soil since 1940 a French judge arose in Cherbourg today and, before passing life sentence on two spies, pronounced the ritual formula: "In the name of the French republic and the people of France."

As he passed sentence a naval guard of French marines sprang to attention and the white bearded defense attorney bowed his head. Tears of joy ran down his cheeks.

It was a dusty, decrepit court in the Palais de Justice in Cherbourg which housed the scene of the first trial held in France since German occupation. It was obviously a court of justice which had fallen into disuse. There were moth holes in the red plush seats and the hanging draperies were so thick with dust that when the prosecuting attorney made a vigorous gesture and accidentally brushed the hangings with his arm, a gray dust, momentarily enveloped him.

Arrested by Americans.

The majority of the trial was held in secret but correspondents were allowed to hear the final stage and the sentencing. The spies were young Frenchmen. Lest their employers should be given a clue as to precisely which two agents they have lost from their muster role, it is forbidden to give details of their arrest by American security police.

An attorney for the youngest French youth argued eloquently that the boy had known nothing but Vichy authority which had dinned collaboration. Accordingly, the attorney said, the youth never had the opportunity to make a mature judgment.

British Aid Secrecy.

The conduct of the trial as far as the press was concerned left much to be desired. Altho espionage was committed against the American army, and altho the spies were trapped by American soldiers, the trial of the French nationals was handed over to a French tribunal thru the directives of higher headquarters.

It was first announced that the trial would be open to the press except for certain details regarding the arrest. Spokesmen for the French approved this plan, we were told, until new orders emanated from the 21st army group, which placed the trial in camera. Under French law the press is not permitted to attend in camera proceedings.

British officers from the 21st army group also repulsed efforts of correspondents to obtain the details.

Gas Thief Sentenced.

Following the trial the court was opened to the public, and the citizens of Cherbourg trooped in to watch the unusual sight of a French court dealing out French justice.

The next case was that of thieving in the Bayeux region. Evidence given by a French policeman was that the accused had been seen to take a can of gasoline and a roll of canvas from a United States army jeep standing at the roadside.

To make it quite clear to the public that this was a French trial and that American military authorities had no part in it, no American officer offered evidence. The accused, a ruddy faced Norman farmer, 63, stood before the tribunal with bowed head as the prosecutor said: "If Frenchmen are going to begin stealing material of war, which has taken our allies four years to accumulate and which is being used to liberate us, then our day of complete liberation will grow more distant."

The prisoner blanched and shook his head unbelievingly when the court sentenced him to 10 years at hard labor.

TITTMAN QUITS THE VATICAN TO RESIDE IN ROME

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VATICAN CITY, July 9.—Harold H. Tittman Jr., United States charge d'affaires to the Holy See, today transferred residence from the Vatican to the city of Rome, taking quarters in the Piazza d'Aracoeli at the foot of the Capitoline hill.

This change has been contemplated since the allies reached Rome. Tittman's office is in the American consulate in the Via Veneto.

U. S. BOMBERS HIT TWO ROMANIAN OIL REFINERIES

Attack Nazi Targets Thruout France.

LONDON, July 9. (AP).—Approximately 1,000 United States heavy bombers, with a fighter escort of equal size, struck at Hitler's Europe from the west and south today.

Britain-based United States Flying Fortresses and Liberators in one of their three attacks of the day hammered bridges in the area of Tours in France. An armada of United States 15th air force heavy bombers streamed up from Italy and rained blows on refineries on the Romanian oil center of Ploesti.

In the Ploesti raid American Liberators blasted the Concordia-Vega refinery, the second largest in Romania, and Flying Fortresses hit the Xenia refinery.

Other Fortresses and Liberators from Britain bombed the Nazis' flying bomb launching sites and related installations in the Pas de Calais area of France and pounded an air field at Chateaudun some 75 miles southwest of Paris.

Normandy Planes Grounded.

Four United States heavy bombers and three fighters were missing from the Tours, Chateaudun, and Pas de Calais attacks. Fighters shot down five Nazi intercepters.

Fighter escorted R. A. F. Lancasters and Halifaxes also joined the campaign against the flying bomb sites, attacking several installations. One British bomber was missing.

American Marauders attacked a highway bridge south of Orleans and Havocs bombed a fuel dump near Regnes.

Lightnings and Mustangs which escorted the heavy bombers to Tours and Chateaudun destroyed or damaged 55 locomotives, 388 freight and tank cars, 68 trucks and other motor vehicles, and 30 railroad ammunition cars.

Attack Enemy Shipping.

A fighter group led by Col. George Crowell, Chicago, shot up a variety of ground objectives, principally locomotives and rolling stock. Lt. Robert Tunlin, La Fayette, Ind., was a member of another fighter group.

British coastal command and fleet air arm aircraft attacked enemy shipping off the Dutch coast, damaging anti-aircraft ships and a merchant vessel.

British Mosquitoes Saturday night attacked objectives in the Ruhr and laid mines in enemy waters without loss.

CHICAGOAN DODGES BULLET, GRENADE AND SHELL; NAMED 'LUCKY'

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

U. S. 1ST ARMY HDQ. IN NORMANDY, July 9.—His infantry friends call Lt. Thomas J. Henderson of Chicago "Lucky." This is why—and it all happened in 24 hours.

He was standing upright when a rifle grenade exploded four feet away without causing even a scratch. A bullet struck his pack, passed thru his mess kit, raincoat, two rifle cleaning cases, and made holes in his blanket before stopping. As he peeped over a hedgerow to shoot a German observer, another bullet pierced his helmet and liner, coming out the other side. All it did was "pulled my hair a little bit." Just as he jumped into a ditch on the left side of the road a German 155 mm. shell exploded in a ditch on the right side.

Henderson is still uninjured and still fighting.

Irish Lord Haw Haw Flees Prison, but Is Recaptured

DUBLIN, Ireland, July 9—(AP).—John Francis O'Reilly, 28 year old associate of the Germans and known as the "Irish Lord Haw Haw," was captured tonight in his home town of Kilkee, county Clare. He escaped four days ago from a military prison where he had been confined since the Germans dropped him in Eire by parachute last December after a long residence in Berlin.

RUSSIANS DRIVE BEYOND WILNO TOWARD KAUNAS

Battle Still Rages in City Left Behind.

LONDON, July 10 [Monday]—(AP).—Leaving large forces of tanks and infantry to overwhelm Germans in Wilno [Vilna], the Red army was dashing westward today toward Kanuas [Kovno], capital of the old Lithuanian republic, 50 miles beyond Wilno. Disordered Germans were falling back across Lithuania and Poland in a military collapse that was declared growing more disastrous by the hour.

In their advance yesterday the Russians captured Lida, railway junction 50 miles south of Wilno, and announced they took more than 1,200 other towns on the central front.

One unconfirmed British press dispatch said the Russians already had conquered Wilno. Neither soviet nor German accounts reported the fall, but Berlin virtually admitted it could not be long delayed, and a Moscow war bulletin this morning said the Russians had captured the main railway station and the airport and were inflicting heavy losses on the Nazis in street fighting.

Air Borne Force Wiped Out.

The Germans brought up last night a large air borne force and it was wiped out, the Russian bulletin stated.

The 1st Baltic front, comparatively quiet in recent days, flamed back into action with Russian advances which a Soviet bulletin said took more than 700 towns northeast of Wilno, including Braslav, 25 miles southeast of Daugavpils [Dvinsk], Druya, on the old Polish-Latvian border, and the railway junction of Lyntupy, between Daugavpils and Wilno.

Besides taking Lida the 3d White Russian army seized more than 300 communities in the district, the supplemental Russian bulletin said.

The 2d White Russian army, driving in south of Lida and north of Baranowicze, announced capture of 150 towns, including Novogrudok and Dyatlovo, 30 miles southeast and south of Lida, respectively.

The 1st White Russian army continued its advance westward in the Pripyat [Pripet] marshes east and north of Pinsk and took 100 towns, the Moscow bulletin said.

Nazi Casualties Mount.

The toll of Nazi casualties mounted rapidly as the Russians cleaned out pockets of enemy troops, that had been left behind.

The official count, lagging behind the actual toll, added 6,530 Germans from the traps east of Minsk Saturday, the Russian bulletin said. This raised the list in that sector alone to 49,632 killed or captured since July 4. Among Saturday's prisoners was a Maj. Gen. Trobitz, commander of the 57th German infantry division, the Russians announced.

Near the southern end of the central front, the Germans asserted, a Russian offensive of increasing intensity was in progress west of Kowel, with at least 10 soviet rifle divisions and three tank corps attacking a large proportion of the German army.

Smash at Lwow Seen.

A German radio commentator said "the soviet aim is to crash thru the German lines and drive west and southwest and capture Lwow and Lublin."

[A Finnish bulletin broadcast by Berlin said the Russians had crossed the Vuoksi river line on the eastern side of the Karelian isthmus.

[Germany's broadcast war bulletin said: "The weight of enemy attacks increased in the Kowel area. The enemy attempt at breaking thru, supported by numerous tanks and battle planes, was frustrated. The defensive battle has been shifted to the area west of Baranowicze and the Molodeczno isthmuses. On both sides of Baronowicze our troops offered stubborn resistance to the soviets attacking with superior infantry and tank formations. In the course of a bitter struggle for Lida this locality has been lost. The garrison at Wilno repelled repeated bolshevist attacks supported by tanks. Enemy formations advancing northwest of Wilno were intercepted."]

CAMERA TAKEN FROM CAR.

Theft of a camera valued at $50 from his car parked on the lower level of Wacker dr. at State st. was reported to police yesterday by Frank Glick, 840 Lockwood av.

8 MORE NURSES RETURN TO NAZIS, 2 CHEWING GUM

Yanks Pass Foes' Line to Arrange Trip.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

FIRST UNITED STATES ARMY HDQ. IN NORMANDY, France, July 9.—For the second Sabbath in succession, two American ambulances late today drove into no man's land south of Caumont and returned eight German nurses to the Nazis. The nurses and 22 doctors were captured when they remained in Cherbourg to care for 1,180 wounded Germans in an underground hospital.

Capt. Quentin Roosevelt.

Col. Richard P. Johnson, 5021 N. Winchester av., Chicago, commands an evacuation hospital where the nurses stayed for three days. He said they were antagonistic.

They Finally Like It.

"But we gave them the run of the hospital, letting them see all of our equipment and our operations on both American and German wounded.

"This morning one of the most ardent Nazis finally told us, 'It is just lovely here.'"

As they prepared to depart to rejoin the Germans one of the nurses told a chaplain:

"I'll see you in Munich and buy you a drink of cognac."

"I'll be seeing you in two weeks," the chaplain laughed, and the nurse shrugged her shoulders.

Walk Thru Nazi Line.

The return of the nurses was arranged by 2d Lt. Kenneth Calligan, 2660 N. 18th st., Milwaukee, and Lt. Earhart Debringhaus, interpreter. They were unable to establish radio contact with the Germans and, therefore, raised a white flag and walked out from a foremost American post toward the Nazis. After 600 yards, two Germans—behind them—ordered them to stop. They had walked thru the enemy line.

The two men were blindfolded and a sergeant went to get two German officers. When the officers appeared, Lt. Calligan returned to the American lines and informed Capt. Quentin Roosevelt, son of Bridg. Gen. Theodore Roosevelt Jr. that arrangements had been completed.

The ambulances, accompanied by Capt. Roosevelt, then drove to the spot near Sept Vents where Lt. Debringhaus and the German officers waited.

A "heil" from the Germans greeted the eight women as they stepped out and thanked the Americans. Then the eight nurses walked away toward home, two of them chewing American gum.

NAZI RUSE FAILS AS ALERT YANKS KILL OR SEIZE 40

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

FIRST U. S. ARMY HDQ. IN NORMANDY, France, July 9.—On a recent cloudy night a tank platoon and an infantry battalion were guarding the outskirts of a small village which the Americans had just captured. The front lines were confused and every man was on the alert.

Corp. William Moreland.

Chester Smolinski.

On guard with his tommy gun, Pvt. Carl Back, Mansfield, O., detected a group of soldiers moving toward the tank site. With Corp. William Moreland, son of Mrs. Agnes Moreland, 1300 W. 72d st., Chicago, he crept along a hedgerow until he could see the men.

See Thru Nazi Trick.

At first it appeared that 40 German prisoners were being brought back by six Americans. Then, in the gloom, Back and Moreland realized it was a ruse. The Germans were armed and were holding the Americans by the elbows.

Back and Moreland scurried back to their tank, warning Chester Smolinski, 1509 South Blvd., Evanston. Together they alerted the entire platoon and opened fire on the Germans.

Kicks Off Hand Grenade.

A Nazi grenade bounced off a tank and rolled toward Back. He kicked it across the road where it exploded harmlessly. For 20 minutes the firing lit up the darkness as the Americans poured bullets into the German ranks.

Back had killed 11 Germans. Moreland had three to his credit and Smolinski, several others, how many, he was not sure. Five Nazis were captured and the remainder of the 40 Germans had been killed by the tanks' machine guns.

There were no casualties among the armored platoon nor the infantry battalion.

SOVIET OUTLAWS EASY DIVORCES; PAYS FOR BIRTHS

Establishes Medals for Motherhood.

MOSCOW, July 9 (AP).—The supreme soviet, in a sweeping decree to strengthen family life, today abolished "free love," made divorces much more difficult to obtain, and granted financial aid for large families, ranging up to 5,000 rubles, or $950 at birth of an 11th child, plus a monthly payment of 300 rubles or $57.

State aid begins with a grant of 400 rubles [$76] at birth of a third child. A fourth child brings $247 and $15.20 per month, with lump sums and monthly aid increasing thereafter. Monthly payments continue until children are 5 years old.

The decree—causing a sensation in Russia—also created honors for mothers, the highest one, "mother heroine," for women rearing 10 or more children, revised family taxes to encourage births, tightened laws against abortionists, liberalized aid for pregnant women, and ordered increased production of baby clothes.

"Mother's Glory."

The order of "Mother's Glory" of first, second, and third class will go to women who rear 9, 8, and 7 children. The medal of motherhood first and second class will be presented to women rearing six and five children.

The change in divorce laws makes divorces harder to obtain than in some states of the United States. Heretofore if a husband and wife desired separation they could obtain a divorce within a few minutes upon application at a registration office.

The new decree requires both parties to file a petition in court and appear personally before a people's court, which hears the evidence, then seeks to determine if it can effect a reconciliation. If this is impossible, the petition can be carried to a higher court. Witnesses must be heard in both courts.

Mothers whose marriages are not registered will receive state relief until the children are 12 years old, and if they want to send the child or children to a state boarding school this will be done at state expense.

Taxes for Childless.

The decrees enact new taxes for man and wife who have less than three children. Childless citizens between 20 and 50 must pay six per cent of their yearly income; citizens with only one child one per cent; citizens with two or three children one-half of one per cent. Exemptions are granted to Red army men and their wives, parents who lose children in the war, students under 25, invalids, and cripples.

The decrees cancel all legal rights of unmarried persons, but allows persons now living together but not registered to become registered. Unwed mothers no longer can appeal to the courts for alimony or support of children. Marriage ceremonies are to be made more solemn.

The government also enacted new exemptions for pregnant women. Their leave from work was extended from the present 63 days to 77—35 before birth and 42 afterward.

PETER REPORTED TO HAVE GIVEN TITO COMMAND

LONDON, July 9 (AP).—The Morocco radio, quoting allied headquarters at Algiers, said tonight King Peter of the Yugoslav government-in-exile had signed a pact with Partisan marshal Tito agreeing to stake his crown on a post-war plebiscite and granting Tito complete command of all military forces in Yugoslavia.

The broadcast said the king agreed not to attempt to return to Yugoslavia until the country had been freed from the Germans and agreed to suspend all other political issues until after the war.

DAY BY DAY ON THE FARM

The FARM by Ben Markland

July 9, 1944.

THE domestication of a wild prairie rose plant has been completed on the Wheaton farm, with excellent results. Unlike the common wild rose, which is small and straggly, the prairie rose becomes large and shrubby and in full bloom presents a round mass of flowers which are light pink to red in color.

Several years ago we found two of these rather uncommon members of the rose family growing near the edge of a woodlot on the west side of the farm. The gardener took about 50 cuttings from the plants and started cultivating them in the farm greenhouse.

In Flower on Farm Lawn.

Last season the greenhouse plants were transplanted to the north edge of the main farm lawn, and this year they are in flower for the first time in their new location.

For the present the prairie rose plants are staked, but as they reach full maturity they will be allowed to stand as individual shrubs, providing a distinctive hedgerow along the north side of the lawn. The flowers are larger than those of the common meadow rose, being 2 to 2½ inches in diameter. They also have a greater variation of color. In a single cluster they range from light pink thru dark pink to lavender and red.

Nine Varieties in State.

There are many varieties of wild roses and each grows in a specific locale. At least nine varieties grow in Illinois, including the common swamp rose [Rosa palustris] in lowlands; the wild prairie rose [Rosa setigera], which grows in full sunlight in open fields; the pasture rose [Rosa carolina], distinguished by the fact that it blooms from June thru mid-August; the common meadow rose [Rosa blanda], and the Woods' rose [Rosa woodsii].

Another native wildflower, domesticated many years ago, also is coming into bloom in the farm fields. It's the wild carrot, or Queen Anne's Lace, and even tho our garden carrots were derived from these native plants, the wild member of the species gets little commendation from farmers. Queen Anne's Lace has an attractive white, flat flower, but it is ranked as a troublesome weed by farmers.

★ The GARDEN ★

PROPER harvesting methods are essential to obtain the maximum production and quality of common garden crops. Snap beans now are coming into the harvest stage in many plots, and the harvest period can be prolonged if the pods are picked as soon as they are fleshy and before the seeds develop inside.

If the pods are allowed to grow large, the plant energy will go into the growth of seeds and the plants will soon cease production.

Sweet corn should be picked shortly after the ears reach the milk stage. If picked too early, the kernels will be soft and watery, but if allowed to stay on the stalks too long the kernels become hard and starchy. Sweet corn ears are in the prime harvest stage for only four to five days, after which they deteriorate rapidly.

4 HURT AS AUTO PLUNGES INTO STREET CAVE-IN

Four persons were injured, one of them seriously, when their automobile plunged into a cave-in on Addison st. between Hermitage av. and Paulina st. yesterday.

Most seriously hurt was Fred Kolb, 42, of 3730 N. Richmond st., who was taken to Alexian Brothers hospital with a fractured nose and a possible skull fracture. The three other occupants of the car, Otto Mayer, 45, of 3709 N. Richmond st., and his two children, Corinne, 8, and Richard, 11, were released from St. Elizabeth's hospital after treatment.

Shifting sands caused by a sewer leak beneath the pavement was believed responsible for the cave-in. The automobile crashed headlong into the hole with less than two feet of its tonneau remaining above the street level.

The occupants of the car were rescued from the pit by passersby and were taken to a nearby house before removal to the hospitals. The automobile was extricated by a fire department wrecking crew, while traffic on Addison st. was halted.

Bolivian Leftist Chief Wounded by Assassin

LA PAZ, Bolivia, July 9 (AP).—Jose Antonio Arze, 43, leader of the Bolivian Leftist Revolutionary party, was shot and critically wounded last night by an unidentified assailant who escaped. Arze, recently elected deputy for La Paz and senator for Potosi, founded the Leftist party in 1940 and subsequently was exiled. Early this year he returned from the United States, where he was a professor at Williams college.

MOVE GERMANS FROM CROATIA TO ITALY FRONT

BY P. E. BRIQUET.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CHIASSO, Switzerland, July 9.—The situation of the Germans in Croatia is growing precarious because of a lack of sufficient troops, according to information reaching here from Zagreb. The German army has been obliged to send troops from Croatia, the report says, to strengthen the occupation of Hungary and to Kesselring's army in Italy to replace Hungarian Cossack auxiliaries.

Besides motorized units and parachutists fighting Marshal Tito in southern Croatia and Bosnia, the German troops limit themselves to protecting airdromes and the main towns and to the military organization of Dr. Anton Pavelich's "Ustachias," who are said to be growing unreliable.

In Zagreb the authority of Pavelich's government is effective in a radius of only 40 miles and it has control in a few other urban centers. Beyond the 40 mile limit of authority deserters from the Ustachias are coöperating with bands who are unwilling to join either Tito or Mihailovitch.

They attack villages, railways, and roads. Therefore the citizens of Zagreb are not permitted to leave the city. The railway lines from Zagreb to Belgrade, Split, and Budapest are interrupted most of the time. The line from Zagreb to Vienna is the only one used regularly. The only airway is from Zagreb to Split, but German pilots recently have replaced the Croatians.

Dr. Vladko Matchek, chief of the Croatian Peasant party, which was organized prior to the war and has 90 per cent of the Croatian vote, no longer is confined to his estate in Kupinetz, where the Pavelich government is no longer in authority. He now lives in Zagreb.

Matchek is permitted a two hour daily walk and to see his confessor, thru whom he is in contact with the bishop of Zagreb, Msgr. Stupinez. This is considered by Zagreb political observers as a sign that Pavelich seeks, thru the medium of the church, to effect an accord with Matchek.

This is said to be proof that Pavelich's position is gradually weakening.

Bottles

Whiskey is aged in barrels, but is sold in bottles. While it is in the barrel things are happening to whiskey—it changes. Practically colorless when it goes into the "wood," it soon takes on an amber hue from the charred oak staves and as time goes on this color deepens to a reddish brown. It also absorbs certain flavor elements from the wood. Whiskey, after it is put into the barrel, continues to improve over a period of years, and the number of years, before it reaches its peak, varies. Sometimes it takes six or seven years, or longer. It depends upon the type of whiskey, warehousing conditions, and the characteristics of the barrel.

When put in the bottle, unlike wine, which may continue to improve, whiskey may be adversely affected by the incorrect type of glass. Now, this may be news to you.

The art of bottle-making goes way back to antiquity, and many are surprised to learn that in our own country the first glass factory was built in Virginia in 1608. But, in spite of the fact that the making of glass and bottles began some thousands of years ago, it has only been during the past few years that the effect of various liquids on their glass containers has been seriously studied. It is now generally known that certain glass has a peculiar action on some liquids, and these liquids likewise have an effect on the glass.

Well, based on scientific study, experimentation and their resultant findings, the distiller today, in his laboratories, has worked out very careful specifications and sampling tests to which all bottles are subjected before they are accepted for whiskey, gin, etc.

In one of our other articles we said, "Men in white have discovered more about whiskey during the past few years; its control during the fermentation and distillation processes; its aging in the wood and its bottling, than in the many hundreds of years preceding." May we say that again?

NAZIS HOLD BACK AND AWAIT NEW LANDING: LANZA

Italy Secondary Campaign for Germans.

BY COL. CONRAD H. LANZA.

[Regular contributor to the Field Artillery Journal and recognized as an authority on military matters.]

The Germans' strategical plan for this year is to concentrate against the invasion of western Europe. They hope that if the allies can be checked there may be a possibility of a negotiated peace.

Just as the allied plans for this summer's campaigns are the fruition of at least two years of preparations, so the German plan apparently is the result of a decision taken after the fall of Stalingrad and the invasion of North Africa. It seems to have been decided on about Feb. 1, 1943.

Gave Up Vast Areas.

Germany first contracted her lines to free troops to meet the coming invasion. She gave up vast areas in Russia; abandoned her troops in Africa; yielded large parts of Italy.

Germany did not expect to prevent landings in France or elsewhere in western Europe. Finnish sources report that Germany told Finland it expected that the allies would land large forces in west Europe. What Germany would try to do would be to pin the invaders down near the coast, without using the general headquarters reserves of Marshal Von Rundstedt.

These were to be held until after the allies had shot their bolt by making all the landings they contemplated. Then the Germans would decide where to use the reserves.

This plan is contingent upon German ability to move the GHQ reserves when and where needed. The allies ever since the invasion have concentrated on an air bombing campaign to destroy railroad and road bridges so as to prevent the use of the German GHQ reserves with any reasonable degree of mobility.

No Let Up in Bombing.

One of the results of the flying bomb has been that the allies have found it of sufficient destructive possibilities as to require the detachment of very large air forces to meet it. Day and night fighter planes patrol the south British coast to shoot down these bombs. Large numbers of heavy bombers are required day and night to attack the supposed sites from which the flying bombs are launched.

Still, the allied air forces have not let up on bombing lines of communication in France. There has been a decided drop in allied bombing of German cities.

At date of writing it is uncertain whether the Germans are able to move their reserves around in France. It is not certainly known that they have yet tried to. The German forces in Normandy appear to be the local army. If any of the GHQ reserve has been used, it would seem to be only a small part. The Germans are sticking to their plan not to commit themselves until after the allies have no more divisions in England to bring over.

Casualties A Major Aim.

The ideal for the Germans, which they can hardly expect, is to make the first allied invasion so expensive that it will be necessary for the allies to continue feeding more troops into it and thereby reduce the number and strength of invasions elsewhere.

Pending new invasions, the Germans not only are attempting to prevent Gen. Montgomery's 21st army group from breaking thru, as the Russians have done in the east, but are seeking to cause allied forces so many casualties as to require that they be reinforced by substantial new forces.

The Italian campaign meanwhile, is a succession of frontal attacks by the allies. For Germany it is a secondary campaign. That part of Italy fought over since the days of Salerno is not needed by Germany either for military or economic reasons. The German plan is to force the allies to use as many troops as possible who might otherwise be employed in France.

Mountains Favor Nazis.

The mountainous nature of Italy lends itself to the German plan. The country is almost ideal for a series of delaying actions, where small forces can hold up much larger ones.

The Germans in Italy have not the strength to undertake an offensive. Consequently, Gen. Alexander's troops can safely attack whenever they want to. They can stop to rest, or to reequip, when desired, sure that the Germans won't start anything.

On their part, the Germans must accept battle whenever and wherever the allies wish.

The German main line of resistance appears to be across the neck of the Italian peninsula. At the moment the Germans are resisting with considerable vigor, making the allied advance as slow and as costly as possible. It is important for the Germans that their main line be not broken before a decision is reached in France.

CHICAGO NAVIGATOR OF BOMBER MISSING IN ROMANIA ACTION

J. K. Whitmore Jr.

Flight Officer Joseph K. Whitmore Jr., 21, of 5547 Kenmore av., has been reported missing in action over Romania since June 24, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph K. Whitmore, learned yesterday.

Flight Officer Whitmore, who was a navigator on an Italy based Liberator bomber, had taken part in 17 missions since he arrived at the base in May. He entered the air forces in July, 1942, while a student at the University of Chicago. Previously he had been graduated from Hyde Park High school.

A brother, Capt. Robert A. Whitmore, 25, is stationed at Tinker field near Oklahoma City.

Japs Claim Damage to One B-29 in Sasebo Raid

New York, July 9 (AP).—The Japanese Domei agency claimed tonight that Japanese fighter units had inflicted heavy damage on one of the American Super Fortresses that raided Yawata and Sasebo Friday. The United States war department announced yesterday that all the B-29s had returned safely to their bases.

90,000 JAPS CUT TO PIECES AFTER DRIVE ON INDIA

Fight on to Escape Annihilation.

NEW DELHI, India, July 9 (AP).—A shattered Japanese army is fighting desperately in the jungles of northern Burma and just inside the frontier of India to avoid complete annihilation, and the threat of a full scale attack on the Manipur capital of Imphal appears definitely ended.

There is every reason to believe that the bulk of the divisions which Japan hurled into the abortive invasion of India and northern Burma have been cut to pieces as fighting units, with thousands dying of starvation.

90,000 Jap Casualties.

An official announcement today said over 40,000 Japanese dead have been buried since the beginning of the year by British, American, and Chinese troops. With the usual ratio of two or three wounded for each man killed, the minimum estimate of Japanese losses is 90,000 casualties.

While the monsoon season and allied troops slowly grind out what may prove to be a major disaster for the Japanese, today's bulletin from Adm. Mountbatten's headquarters at Kandy, Ceylon, mentioned few important changes in positions.

Northwest of Ukhrul, where the British have secured the southern portion of the base 24 miles northeast of Imphal, the Japanese were said to have abandoned Shorburg and two other positions. Several more positions in the northern part of Ukhrul were taken.

May Have to Withdraw.

Southeast of Imphal the British apparently had by-passed Palel near the Burma border and were fighting east of the town.

Whether the Japanese eventually would be forced to withdraw completely across the Chindwin river to the east, or into Arakan to the south remained to be seen, but they have abandoned large quantities of material.

In fierce fighting in north Burma, Chinese troops advanced a few more yards in besieged Myitkyina, and in the Mogaung valley to the west moved to within 10 miles of joining the allied forces holding Mogaung.

WALLET STOLEN FROM ROOM.

Theft of his wallet containing $54 from his room at 258 N. California av., was reported to police yesterday by Lewis Long.

JAPS BATTLE TO RENEW BROKEN HENGYANG SIEGE

CHUNGKING, China, July 9 (AP).—Fighting without much change in positions along the Canton-Hankow railroad was reported by the Chinese high command today. Chinese units which broke the siege of Hengyang were still in battle with Japanese invaders.

"Our defenders are still holding their own," said the bulletin, which reported heavy casualties for both sides.

"Various strong Chinese units on the outer ring of Hengyang continued to tighten the noose on the Japanese, despite stiff resistance. Enemy counter-attacks at a number of points were repelled," said the bulletin.

Chinese columns had broken into Hengyang from the south to the relief of encircled Chinese who had held out 12 days. But the Japanese were still on the east, west, and north of the city, and fighting to stave off stabs at their supply lines threatened from either side.

Altho the Japanese were stalled in their joint Hunan-Kwangtung offensive to clinch control of a 1,000 mile rail line across China, reports indicated the invaders were trying to gain time while gathering strength for their next attack.

The Japanese also met with reverse in their northward drive from the Canton area in an effort to link up with their Hengyang forces. The Chinese bulletin said a Chinese unit was in pursuit of the enemy fleeing from Lunghwa.

American planes left a trail of smashed boats, airdromes, and enemy headquarters in forays which hit Anking on the Yangtze, Yochow on Tungting lake, the Tien Ho, and White airdromes at Canton.

OUSTER STIRS FEAR FOR ARMY PAPER'S FUTURE

War Department Rule Seen as Mistake.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Italy, July 9.—The ousting of Col. Egbert White as director of the Mediterranean editions of the Stars and Stripes and the transfer of the newspaper's control to the army public relations department, as reported here from Algiers, have left the local staff uncertain as to its future and what will happen to the policy of this publication for American soldiers.

According to the meager information from Algiers, White was relieved of the post by the war department because he had asked for more coverage—particularly political—of American news. It is recalled that dispatches printed in the Stars and Stripes concerning the Republican national convention were inadequate and colorless, in the opinion of many G. I.'s.

Wider Coverage Blocked.

White had been blocked somewhere along the line in his attempts to buy the Associated Press and United Press news services he felt were needed for representative coverage of the United States. There also was a report that he had assigned two Stars and Stripes reporters now at home—Sgt. Jack Foisie and Sgt. Ralph Martin—to attend the G. O. P. convention and send dispatches but that this was countermanded by the war department.

The Stars and Stripes, when it began publication in this theater shortly after the African invasion in November, 1942, received a guarantee from Gen. Eisenhower that the army would never interfere with its freedom as to what to print [subject, of course, to normal military security] and that it was to be always a soldiers' newspaper. The Stars and Stripes has been at various times connected with the special services and service of supply sections of the army, but has always functioned as a separate, autonomous unit.

Army Domination Feared.

Placing the Stars and Stripes under the control of the public relations department would make the news content subject to army domination, in the opinion of many observers. Circumstances could arise where the newspaper would be forced to print public relations handouts and so fill the columns with material often overwritten and unnewsworthy.

Fred Painton, a correspondent for the Reader's Digest in this theater, was on the staff of the Stars and Stripes in the last war with White. Both were enlisted men.

"The Stars and Stripes then was published by and for the enlisted men of the American Expeditionary Force," Painton told me, "and a legend to that effect was carried on the front page of every edition. The publication gained the trust of every doughboy. If now the Stars and Stripes is made into an army trade paper it will be a mistake."

Home Subscriptions Curbed.

It is reported the Stars and Stripes will no longer be allowed to publish magazine supplements. There is speculation as to whether the editorial content of the supplements angered the army. The war department possibly did not enjoy a cartoon in the Collier's supplement last week. This showed soldiers meeting in the jungle and recognizing each other with the remark, "We met when we were with the infantry at Montgomery Ward last April."

The war department has placed a ban on further home subscriptions to weekly special editions of the Stars and Stripes.

"What's the matter?" one G. I. remarked. "Doesn't the war department want the people back home to know what the soldier thinks?"

FIRE DAMAGES WINDOW DISPLAY.
Fire yesterday in the second floor display windows of the L. C. Smith Clothing, Inc., store at 6357 Halsted st. caused damage estimated at $700.

Legends tell developments in the war in Italy.

FIRES IN LIVORNO HINT NAZIS BURN NAVAL SUPPLIES

ROME, July 9 (AP).—The 5th army has captured Volterra, the last good mountain road hub guarding the approaches to Livorno [Leghorn]. Allied vanguards were fighting today within 10 miles of the great Tyrrhenian port, aflame from fires apparently set by the enemy to destroy naval stores and port facilities.

Fighting raged on above the town, whose fall accompanied advances all along the Italian front.

Counter-attacks were made by the Germans from one end of the 155 mile line to the other and the progress of allied troops was slow in their drive toward the Gothic line above Pisa, Florence, and Rimini.

The Germans threw the 90th armored grenadier division of North African fame into the battle for Volterra, but the doughboys outflanked it by seizing positions to the northwest and northeast.

The 5th army was pinned down on the coast road below Livorno but made slight gains north and northwest of Rosignano, three miles inland.

Town Taken by Italians.

At the other end of the front, Italian troops fighting alongside the Poles in the British 8th army captured Filottrano, 15 miles southwest of the port of Ancona. The Poles, advancing northwestward in an enveloping movement from Osimo, were within eight miles of Ancona.

There was bitter fighting along the Arno river valley from five to seven miles south of Arezzo, 36 miles southeast of Florence. A see-saw struggle raged on a mountainside, where a curtain of mortar fire was encountered by other 8th army units in its sector. The British beat off three savage counter-attacks but were unable to advance thru heavy fire.

The British pressing up the Tiber valley farther east scored small advances beyond Montone.

One of the heaviest counter-attacks came on the western end of the front two miles north of Castellina. Here the Americans were forced back by the Germans, who appeared in unusual strength.

Allied tank units crashed into Castel San Gimignano, 26 miles southwest of Florence, and cleared more than two miles of road east of the town after a counter-attack had been smashed by artillery.

American tanks supported French units who moved forward to within a mile and a half of the road hub of Poggibonsi, east of San Gimignano on the main north-south road to Florence.

Planes Bomb Railways.

Rail yards at Bologna, Milan, and Turin and other rail targets in northern Italy were bombed.

[The broadcast German war report said: "The enemy continued his attacks with particular violence at the Ligurian coast near Volterra, northwest of Siena, and along the Adriatic coast. With the exception of small local dents, the enemy was repelled with heavy losses."]

GESTAPO MEN IN FRANCE RELEASE ARMY FOR FRONT

BERN, Switzerland, July 9 (AP).—German elite troops have been placed in charge of the campaign against French partisans to release units of the regular army for front line duty, it was reported today after a tour of the front by the new German commander in France, Field Marshal Guenther von Kluge.

Informants in France said the SS, with at least 3,000 gestapo men added during the last three weeks, won considerable strength after the retirement of Gen. Von Rundstedt, and that terrorism would be increased sharply.

Field Marshal Rommel, who won over Rundstedt, is reported under the check of Kluge to the extent that his decisions must be approved by the commander in chief.

ALLIES TO OPEN BURIAL CAVE OF 320 NAZI VICTIMS

Hope to Find Secret of Mass Slaying.

ROME, July 4 [Delayed]—(AP).—Exhumation of the bodies of 320 Italians killed by Nazi machine-guns and buried in a cave on the outskirts of Rome will begin next week, giving Anglo-American authorities their first opportunity to investigate mass executions in German-occupied Europe.

Pending the opening of the tomb, which the Germans sealed by dynamiting the entrance, the allies have had nothing official on "the martyrs of Via Ardeatina." There is no reticence, however, on the part of Italian women and children mourners who daily stream down Via Ardeatina to the cave.

Varying accounts have been published since the Germans announced on March 25 that 320 hostages had been put to death to avenge 32 Germans and an Italian Fascist.

Story is Pieced Together.

This seems to be a fairly accurate consensus of what happened:

There was an explosion near the Quirinal, setting off an hour of sporadic shooting in which the Nazis were killed. German troops arrested most of the men in the neighborhood and took them to Regina Coeli prison, already crowded with political prisoners, common criminals and petty offenders. From them all the Germans chose the 320 hostages who were to die.

"They did not choose the important prisoners," Italians relate. "They were always hopeful such men would break down and tell something about it. Instead, they chose the least dangerous men, some of whom had been arrested for irregularities such as errors in their identification cards or violations of the curfew." But there were some former army officers, lawyers, and journalists.

Soon after noon on March 24, German soldiers, 200 of them, unloaded shovels, rifles, and machine-guns at the cave.

The hostages were loaded into the trucks at the prison and driven to the cave with a large squad of SS. troopers and Farcist military police.

Two Boys Solve Mystery.

Machine gunning inside the cave after sunset was reported. The next morning neighbors saw only the Germans leaving the scene, and there were two explosions. Nazi sentries kept crowds away from the cave, and the bulletin announcing the execution of the 320 was issued that evening.

Two boys seeking their father entered the cave and found the passageway had not been completely sealed by the explosion. One reported he saw scores of bodies.

Another Blast Seals Tomb.

Word of the discovery apparently reached German ears, for on April 1 Nazi Storm Troopers returned, and a heavy explosion completed the entombment.

Families of the victims later received three typewritten lines in German saying that the deaths occurred on March 24.

Removal of the bodies to graves in the catacombs of San Calisto will begin about July 15. Relatives and friends have organized "the committee of 320" to erect a monument at the cave.

OFFICE EQUIPMENT STOLEN.
Andrew Nelson, owner of a coal company at 1119 E. 42d st., reported to police yesterday that thieves stole two adding machines, a typewriter, and a check protector, all valued at $515, in a burglary Saturday night.

DE GAULLE PRESENTS MODEL SUB TO F. D. R.; IT FIRES AND DIVES

Washington, D. C., July 9 (AP).—Gen. De Gaulle worked today on plans for the liberation of France after concluding his conversations with President Roosevelt, pronounced successful on both sides.

De Gaulle this morning attended mass at a small Washington church. By messenger he dispatched a present for President Roosevelt to the White House, a unique model submarine, about a yard and a half long. French officials said jokingly it should be known as the first submarine to cross the Atlantic in an airplane.

The model, a working reproduction of a real submarine, was made by workers in the arsenal at Tunis, after its liberation, and presented by them to Gen. De Gaulle.

It plunges, fires torpedoes, and is so complicated that a big red book of instructions goes with it.

Tomorrow the general will hold a press conference in the morning and then fly to New York where a quick round of ceremonies and receptions is planned before he leaves for a brief visit to Canada and his return to Algiers.

500,000 See Independence Day Parade in Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, July 9 (AP).—President Edelmiro J. Farrell, his cabinet, and nearly 500,000 persons witnessed an Independence day parade today which included a 150 plane aerial show featuring the new DL-22 fighter planes built in the army's factory at Cordoba. Mountain troops, making their debut in white uniforms, attracted much attention. Climaxing the parade were tanks built in Argentina.

NAZI SUBS TOTAL FAILURE IN JUNE, ALLIES REPORT

At Best They Sank Just One Invasion Vessel.

Washington, D. C., July 9 (AP).—President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill reported jointly today that "Hitler's submarine fleet failed on all counts in June, 1944."

No detailed figures were given but the monthly report on the anti-submarine campaign asserted that merchant vessel losses to the undersea "reached almost the lowest figure of the entire war." It added:

"For every united nations' merchant vessel sunk by German submarines, several times as many U-boats were sent to the bottom."

Few in Atlantic.

"Hitler's submarine fleet failed on all counts in June, 1944," the report said. "Not only were the U-boats unable to halt the united nations' invasion of the continent, but their efforts to prevent the necessary supplying of our constantly growing allied army in Europe were made completely ineffective by our counter-measures.

"The U-boats apparently concentrated to the west of the invasion during the month, relatively few of them being disposed over the Atlantic."

A supplementary report asserted that only one merchant ship of the fleet taking part in the invasion could be charged as a possible U-boat victim.

"In this case," it was added, "doubt exists as to her destruction by U-boat or mine.

Attacked by Planes.

"This is despite attempts by a substantial force of U-boats to pass up-channel from their bases in Norway and France. Such attempts were of course expected and United States and British air squadrons of coastal command, working in co-operation with the surface forces of the allies navies, were ready.

"From the moment that the U-boats sailed from their bases they were attacked by aircraft of coastal command. . . .

"The enemy were thus frustrated . . . and have suffered heavy casualties.

"Operations continue."

2 SENATORS ASK STIFF DEMOCRAT FOREIGN PLANK

Washington, D. C., July 9 (AP).—Two senators who will help draft the 1944 Democratic platform called in unison today for a strong, plainly worded foreign policy plank to let the world know America will take a hand in international affairs after the war.

Both Senators Truman [D., Mo.] and Tunnell [D., Del.] agreed the platform should emphasize foreign affairs rather than domestic issues. They will join 21 other Democrats in Chicago two days before the national convention opens on July 19 to begin sorting out material for a platform.

Tunnell told a reporter that the Democratic record is pretty well established on domestic issues.

"We stand for the so-called New Deal legislation which the Republicans dare not promise to repeal," he said.

Truman added:

"For twelve years, the Democratic party's domestic program has been clear and generally accepted. It doesn't need elaboration."

Russian Festivity

Specialist George Janchenko of Summit holds Olga Michka, 1549 S. California av., as the two joined in merrymaking at Russian day in Pilsen park.

Five thousand Chicago Russian-Americans attended the third annual Russian day picnic yesterday in Pilsen park, 26th st. and Albany av. The all-day event, which this year promoted sales in the fifth war loan drive and the enlistment of volunteers for Russian war relief work, was sponsored by the United Russian American committee.

Vladimir Bazykin, first secretary of the soviet embassy, who came from Washington, D. C., was the principal speaker. He thanked the "working people" of Chicago for the clothing and supplies that have been sent to Russia.

"In Russia," Bazykin said, "every man, woman, and child is fighting the Nazis. They feel it is a holy war. With the help of the American and British armies, which are doing a splendid job, the enemy soon will be crushed."

Patrick Rush of the Community and War Fund and Maj. J. H. Westerbrook, representing the 6th service command, also were speakers.

8 NAZIS ESCAPE FROM MICHIGAN PRISONER CAMPS

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 9 (AP).—State police and federal bureau of investigation agents combed Michigan and adjacent states today for eight young Nazi prisoners of war who escaped from two western Michigan encampments last night.

Howard R. Bobbitt, special agent in charge of the FBI here, said five prisoners fled from a camp at Lake Odessa, Mich., and three from Fremont, Mich. He doubted the two breaks were jointly planned.

All eight men escaped during the night by cutting wires and evading sentries on guard over their stockades, Bobbitt said. The trail of the five Lake Odessa fugitives was lost at a railroad right of way, and the FBI agent said it was possible they had made their getaway aboard a night freight train.

DEWEY ASSAILS NAZI KILLING OF HUNGARIAN JEWS

New York, July 9 [Special]—Gov. Dewey described the massacre of Jews by the Nazis in Hungary as an outrage against all humanity in a telegram read today at special services held by the First Hungarian Reformed church of New York to protest against Nazi brutality.

"The voice and the heart of America are with you in your special service of intercession for the Jews in Hungary," the Republican Presidential candidate said in his wire. "You bespeak the views of all of us when you broadcast to the people of Hungary a plea to resist this criminality to the utmost."

Members of the congregation received yellow Star of David armbands which they planned to wear for 24 hours as a symbol of sympathy. Later 2,000 persons gathered at Castle Hill Garden park, the Bronx, for services sponsored by the American Hungarian federation of Washington.

Two Million Jews Slain.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 9 (AP).—Dr. Israel Goldstein, president of the Zionist Organization of America, called on the allied nations today to "take every possible measure" to rescue surviving Jews from German-held Europe. Speaking before the national administrative council of the Zionist organization here, Dr. Goldstein said neutral sources had confirmed the execution of 2 million Jews by the Nazis in the two years ended April 15.

Washington, D. C., July 9 (AP).—Reverse lend-lease has resulted in $66,400,000 of repairs, fuel, stores, and services for American merchant ships in United Kingdom and British colonies ports, according to estimates furnished war shipping administration by the British ministry of war transport. Under reverse lend-lease the services are provided without payment by the United States, the WSA said today.

DEWEY LISTENS TO PULPIT PLEA FOR PRODUCTION

Joins Wife in Hymns at Country Church.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pawling, N. Y., July 9.—Gov. Dewey and his family this morning heard a sermon on Christ's condemnation of nonproduction. They attended services at a nonsectarian church on Quaker Hill near here, as has been their Sunday custom since he bought a farm in the neighborhood five years ago.

The sermon, by the Rev. Ralph Lankler, a Presbyterian of Cortland, N. Y., was based on Luke xiii, 6, as follows:

"He spake also this parable: A certain man had a fig tree planted in his vineyard, and he came and sought fruit thereon, and found none.

"Then said he unto the dresser of his vineyard, behold, these three years I come seeking fruit on this fig tree, and find none: Cut it down; why cumbereth it the ground."

Sees Modern Application.

The pastor said Jesus on numerous occasions denounced failure to produce to full capacity for the benefit of God and man. Enlarging upon the parable, the Rev. Mr. Lankler said the lesson can be applied to institutions as well as to man.

"Man and nations," he said, "will be judged not by their declarations of high principles but by their fruits you will know them."

The Deweys sat together in the fourth row in the little church of 150 seats. Gov. Dewey wore a single breasted gray suit with a pencil stripe. His wife wore a miniature straw sailor of navy blue with a turned up brim, and gloves and shoes to match, and a pine green crepe dress with white butterfly figures and with a matching short sleeved bolero.

Join in Singing Hymns.

The Deweys, both with trained voices, shared a hymn book while another was shared by their boys, Thomas Jr., 11, and John, 8. No one stared at them except a group of newspaper reporters traveling with the Republican presidential candidate. Others in the audience all knew the Deweys as neighbors.

After the services families mingled, shook hands, smiled and chatted. They made a pretty picture, the freshly washed children, the women in bright summer dresses, men in summer washables, and three other men in uniform—two soldiers and a young navy lieutenant—all before a little white church on a wooded hill overlooking broad valleys with Berkshire foothills on the horizon.

Quaker Church Near-by.

Men and women have assembled in worship on this hill since 1741. Near-by is a two story, brown, single oblong meeting house of the Quakers, which was appropriated by George Washington's army to use as a hospital for soldiers wounded at the battle of White Plains.

It's in this background that Dewey finds rest and inspiration for his duties as governor and as the Republican presidential nominee.

The governor tonight returned by automobile to Albany, where tomorrow he will confer on campaign strategy with Republican members of congress from Vermont and Massachusetts.

Won't he be surprised when he finds out his girl friend isn't still riding behind him.

'ERA OF PACIFIC' IS FORESEEN BY VICE PRESIDENT

Tells of Viewing U. S. Goods in Russia.

Seattle, Wash., July 9 (AP).—A post-war world dominated economically by the vast resources and great development of the territories bounding the North Pacific ocean was envisioned today by Vice President Wallace on his return from China and Siberian Russia.

He predicted the post-war period will come to be known as the "era of the Pacific," an era marked by tremendous international air lines communications and the development of great airports in places now thinly populated. He said the national future of the United States requires the maintenance of an air route from North America thru Alaska to Siberia, the orient, and to Europe in coöperation with the Chinese and Russian people.

More American than Ever.

Wallace, speaking over a nationwide radio hookup, said his travels served only to strengthen his faith in our own country.

"Today," he asserted, "I am more than ever an American. The more I examine other countries, the more convinced I am that the American way of life is the best way for us. We can and should fit our own way of life to coöperation with other nations and other peoples whose way of life is different from ours, but who need our coöperation quite as much as we need theirs and are not only willing, but eager, to coöperate with us."

Talks to Chiang.

During his seven weeks of travel in an army transport plane the Vice President visited western Canada, Alaska, Siberian Russia, and China, where he spent four days in Chungking in conversations with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

Wallace said he saw favorable evidences of the lend-lease program in Siberia. He asserted:

"I found American flour in the soviet far east, American aluminum in soviet airplane factories, American steel in truck and railway repair shops, American machine tools in shipbuilding yards, American compressors and electrical equipment on soviet naval vessels, American electric shovels in open-cut coal mines, American core drills in copper mines of central Asia, and American trucks and planes performing strategic transportation functions in supplying remote bases. I am convinced from what I saw in Siberia and central Asia that lend-lease has helped the Russians in many difficult and even critical situations on the industrial front, as well as on the military front."

Will Help Keep U. S. Busy.

Summing up his views of foreign trade to come, he said:

"Trade with Russia and China will help keep the factories of America busy in the days that lie ahead.

"I am convinced that a main area of development after this war—new enterprise, new investment, new accomplishments—will be in the new world of the north Pacific and eastern Asia."

Wallace left Seattle shortly after his speech. He said that Tuesday he would "report to President Roosevelt certain definite facts which I am not at liberty to discuss here."

REPORTS TROLLEY HIT HIM.

Egbert St. John, 71, of 1810 N. Clark st., told police yesterday that he was struck at Monroe and Dearborn sts. by a street car which failed to stop. He was treated in Presbyterian hospital for a brain concussion and cuts on the right side.

LUCAS EXTOLS F.D.R., DISCOUNTS REDS IN PARTY

Sen. Lucas [D., Ill.] held yesterday that President Roosevelt is indispensable to the winning of the war, pointed out that there are only 38 persons with Communist leanings in government employe and challenged Clare Booth Luce to furnish a bill of particulars with her statements that the New Deal is the "kingdom of bumbledom."

Lucas participated, with Gov. Broughton of North Carolina, and Prof. Jerome G. Kerwin of the University of Chicago, in the University Round Table broadcast. The subject was "Issues Facing the Democratic party."

Despite all strikes and slowdowns, Lucas said, loyal labor has continued its miraculous war production.

Lucas agreed with Gov. Broughton that the issues at present are "victory, peace and jobs."

Gov. Broughton held that the American people believe wholeheartedly in free enterprise, added that it should be given every chance in the post-war era, but not be left free to monopolize and exploit without some regulation.

IN MONTANA

The PICK is a Mighty Weapon -

● Minerals and ores—so essential for implements of war—are abundant in Montana. Thus, the miner's pick becomes a mighty weapon in our march to victory.

The pick also symbolizes the industrious and enterprising spirit of Montana's citizens. That same spirit, based on the fundamental belief that prosperity is achieved only through hard work and individual enterprise, enabled Montana's early settlers to convert a wilderness into a productive land.

Today, Montana's minerals, oil, timber, and products of ranch and farm play a tremendous part in carrying on offensive warfare. Transportation of these products to home-front and battle-front is provided by Union Pacific over "the strategic middle route" uniting Montana with the East and the Pacific Coast.

SECRET PARLEYS CONDEMNED BY LONDON WEEKLY

May Never Know Peace Terms, It Says.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 9.—The revival of secret diplomacy by the allies was condemned in the London Tribune, a weekly Socialist organ which for some tim has been carrying on a campaign demanding that the allies state their peace terms now. The paper cites a statement of the president of the Brazilian republic that armistice conditions which will be imposed upon Germany have been agreed upon as proof the allies are keeping secrets from the people.

"The present situation reveals the extent of decay of democratic practices between the two wars," it complains, adding: "This time we are not even sure that full armistice conditions will be made known when the fighting ceases. No one, outside of a selected few, knows what the Italian armistice terms are. Marshal Badoglio and King Victor Emmanuel know, for they agreed to them, but we are not told nor are the Italian people, who are helping to build a new Italy in a framework which is concealed from them but to which they have been committed by their own Fascists.

"Are We Committed?"

"To what has Churchill committed us? It is no satisfaction to know that Marshal Stalin and Franklin Roosevelt have also agreed. There is no electorate to which those three are jointly responsible. Each speaks in the name of his own country, and each country must deal with him after its own fashion.

"Marshal Stalin no doubt can be said to speak for Russia, but can Roosevelt and Churchill claim to speak for America and Britain in the same sense? If that were true, democracy would have become an empty word and the war would have accomplished the triumph of dictatorship, not its downfall.

"Democracy would be condemned to death if it had to function in an atmosphere of secrecy."

"Playing Dangerous Game."

The Tribune says the present armistice proposals have not even the merit of being known "to the people who will be called upon to implement them." Allied statesmen, it contends, "are playing a really dangerous game if the people of democracies are called upon to suffer and sacrifice for policies of a nation to which they belong, and it can be properly argued that it is their responsibility, for they helped to make the policies in the first place.

"What becomes of this argument if vital decisions, taken over their heads, are made in secret by men to whom they have never intrusted the task? Their moral responsibility ceases and the close identification between the people and government—which is the strength of democracy—is broken."

"O, I can't expect much help from my husband. This is his summer to hang around the drug store and talk politics!"

PRYOR, WILLKIE LEADER IN 1940, OUT FOR DEWEY

Samuel F. Pryor.

New York, July 9—(AP).—Samuel F. Pryor of Connecticut, Wendell L. Willkie's eastern campaign manager in the 1940 Presidential contest, today gave unqualified indorsement to the Presidential candidacy of Gov. Dewey on the Republican ticket.

Predicting that Dewey and his running mate, Gov. Bricker of Ohio, would carry Connecticut by "a comfortable majority," the former vice chairman of the Republican National committee declared:

"Dewey's victory will provide the youth in the armed forces and the youth on the home front with what they are looking for along with the rest of us—decent, honest government. We must have morality in government, government officials, and in our courts. Gov. Dewey's career is symbolic of this."

Canada to Send Farm Machinery to Europe

OTTAWA, Ont., July 9—(AP).—Woollen garments, farm machinery, canned fish and wheat will be among the items which Canada, as a member of the allied relief and rehabilitation administration will be expected to furnish the peoples of countries liberated from the enemy, it was announced by Roy F. Hendrickson, head of the bureau of supplies.

FOUR ROBBERS GET $4.
Four Negroes robbed him of $4 near his home, Kyle Spencer of 6510 Eberhart av., reported to police yesterday.

GERALD SMITH TO DEMOCRATS: PICK WHEELER

Gerald L. K. Smith, leader of the America First party, said yesterday his group will meet here July 17, two days in advance of the Democratic national convention, and call on the Democrats to nominate Sen Wheeler of Montana for President.

He also said he will ask his party leaders to approve a resolution urging Gov. Dewey to resign the Republican Presidential nomination "in order that Gov. Bricker, whom the people love and want, may be given the right of way to become the victorious Presidential candidate."

He said that if the Democrats nominate President Roosevelt he will call a national convention of the America First party, which will then nominate a candidate of its own. The candidate, he suggested, might be Charles A. Lindbergh.

NEWS FOR SOLDIERS.

Col. Egbert White, a former New York advertising executive, has been relieved of his duties as director of the Mediterranean editions of the Stars and Stripes, daily newspaper for service men, and has been ordered back to the United States. Army public relations officers will take over direction of the papers, published at Oran, Algiers, Naples, and Rome. Col. White's removal followed the visit of Secretary Stimson and Maj. Gen. Alexander D. Surles, director of army public relations, to the Mediterranean theater.

Apparently Col. White offended by insisting that the G. I.s who read his newspapers be furnished with an unbiased news report. Correspondents in North Africa say that Col. White tried to make the Stars and Stripes a metropolitan newspaper, containing objective coverage of political and other controversial news. He resisted political censorship of news stories from the United States, and sought to obtain a daily report of 2,000 words from the Associated Press to supplement dispatches from the Army News service and the psychological warfare branch.

Thru Col. White's removal, the way seems to be cleared for the Army News service and the psychological warfare branch to feed the soldiers and sailors the kind of politically censored news, favorable to the fourth term, that the army PRO's and the political secretary of the war department would like them to have. Civilians may wonder if the psychological warfare boys aren't waging their warfare against American fighting men.

The transfer of Col. White appears to be another bloodless victory for the army press relations officers who are seldom around when there is any shooting altho, certainly, they are expendable. There has been considerable speculation as to why these civilians in uniform ever were granted commissions. They have done newspaper men and their readers no good. On the contrary, they have caused a lot of news to be suppressed. Now the PRO's are taking over the Mediterranean service papers which, until they came along, showed promise of developing into a free, American press.

The Nazi general, Karl von Schlieben, who surrendered at Cherbourg, is reported to have muttered when American newspaper men sought to question him that he was bored with the idea of a free press. This attitude seems to have a considerable following in our war department and apparently it will prevail until the war department ceases to be the political appendage of the White House and of a commander in chief whose chief objective, military and otherwise, is a fourth term.

COLLEGE TUITION.

Wilbur C. Munnecke, vice president of the University of Chicago, suggested at a meeting of educational administrators on the Midway that colleges might abandon their flat tuition scales. His suggestion was that they charge what the traffic would bear, as he said physicians do in order to be able to care for charity patients. The son of a wealthy home, under such arrangements, might be charged double tuition in order that a poor boy could get an education.

An adaptation of his proposal might make scholastic accomplishment, rather than means, the basis of tuition. Every student would be charged tuition substantially higher than present levels, but instead of the increase accruing to the college, it would be rebated to those students who did best in their classes. In state universities, where tuition is free or negligible, the rebates might be large enough to defray part of the living expenses of the best students.

American colleges have two economic problems in regard to their students. The first is the young man or woman who regards a college career as a four year membership in a country club. Parents are frequently willing to pay the freight on such a career, as a means of putting their offspring in an academic deep freeze until they are old enough to start selling insurance or catch husbands. The country club set could still go to college, but at a charge more nearly commensurate with the hindrance they offer to genuine educational activity.

A more serious problem is the conviction of a great many people that poor boys and girls are the victims of economic discrimination because they cannot afford to go to college. That these people may overestimate both the economic value of a college education and the difficulty of getting one is beside the point. So long as the opinion exists, it is a lever constantly available to those who proclaim that the government owes every one a college education, regardless of his ability to absorb it. Differential tuition, under which the student who made the best use of his instruction would pay the least for it, would do much to discourage revival of such rackets as the NYA.

FREEDOM OF THE AIR—FOR DEMOCRATS.

State Sen. Frederic R. Coudert Jr. of New York, a Republican, made a speech Friday night before an American Legion meeting. He had intended to say that an administration "which owes its life in no small measure to the Browders, the Marcantonios, and the Hillmans cannot be relied upon alone for the defense of constitutional liberties."

He didn't say it because the management of radio station WMCA, which was to broadcast his speech, forced him to delete the paragraph. Nathan Straus, owner of the station, admitted that he had censored the speech himself, on his own initiative, without any reference to rules of the federal communications commission. He did so, he asserted, because he considered some of Coudert's language to contain "aspersions on our allies and material calculated to stir up disunity at home." It apparently is his position that any mention of American Communists or fellow travelers is an attack on our ally, Russia.

Coudert, telling the Legionnaires of the censorship incident, said that the station should not be wholly blamed, since the FCC "sits like a devil on a pedestal, wielding the power of life or death over a radio station."

Donald Flamm, former owner of WMCA, testified before a congressional committee recently that he was forced to sell the station under threats made by a clique of New Dealers. The purchaser was Harry Hopkins' former undersecretary of commerce, Edward J. Noble. Noble's attorney was William J. Dempsey, former FCC counsel. Dempsey, Flamm asserted, told him that if he did not sell, the FCC would revoke his license. Flamm listed David K. Niles and Tommy Corcoran of the White House palace guard as the manipulators of the deal. Noble, after buying the station, sold it to Straus at a reported profit of $400,000.

Straus himself was national housing administrator under the New Deal. In view of the dubious circumstances under which he got the station, he should have leaned backward to avoid the impression that he was using it as a New Deal organ. His failure to do so confirms the suspicion that it was for that purpose that it was placed in his hands.

BIDDLE ON STRIKES.

Attorney General Biddle has appealed to American Legionnaires of New York to soften the wrath of men in the army against war time strikers.

The Roosevelt administration has been the most notorious in the history of this nation in setting class against class. It has regularly used the class antagonisms that it has fostered as a means of getting votes based on prejudice. Mr. Biddle has done his share of this nasty work.

He now appeals against such group prejudices because they have become a political hindrance rather than a help to the administration. Not only are soldiers irked by strikes, but they are shrewd enough to place the blame for them where it belongs, at Mr. Roosevelt's door.

Mr. Biddle denounced strikes, but he was careful to call them unauthorized strikes. That is a new pardon-begging phrase by which union officials and their New Deal sponsors seek to avoid responsibility for interruption of war production. Obviously, a union that can't control the actions of its members shouldn't be allowed to bargain for those members. Union officials are responsible for strikes whether they authorize them or not, by the mere fact that they fail to prevent them.

Mr. Biddle doesn't do anything about the strikes. He will be content if the army won't be mad about them. His behavior parallels that of the administration and the CIO in the Coos Bay case, in which the crew of that ship wrote a letter to the Associated Press criticizing strikers. The CIO didn't apologize for the strikers. It attacked the AP for circulating the letter. The administration didn't do anything about the strikers. It started an investigation of how the letter got to the AP.

The New Dealers don't want the people to be talking about strikes because in doing so the people are bound to place the responsibility where it belongs.

DAUGAVPILS OR DVINSK.

The town with the engaging name of Daugavpils used to be known as Dvinsk. If the Russians have their way, it will soon be known again as Dvinsk, for Daugavpils is the Latvian name for the place and the Russians say there isn't going to be any more Latvia.

We think it is safe to predict that neither as Daugavpils nor as Dvinsk is the town likely to find its way into English poetry. For that matter, neither will Minsk, Pinsk, and Vitebsk, Omsk, Tomsk, and Irkutsk. They don't rhyme with much. The only rhymes for Dvinsk are Pinsk and Minsk, and the only rhyme for Omsk is Tomsk. Vitebsk and Irkutsk don't rhyme with anything, which is perhaps just as well. Daugavpils offers more opportunities but before advantage can be taken of them, the poet must find out whether the rhyme is with mills, meals or miles, and few poets have time to devote to such researches.

Readers of American newspapers owe their acquaintance with Daugavpils to a recent decision of the news agencies to adopt the Geographic society's system of naming places. It is very simple. The name of a place is the name by which the town's postmaster calls it. As this Daugavpilsian [or should we say Daugavpilsite] says Daugavpils, we also say Daugavpils. The only trouble with this otherwise perfect system is that local customs in these matters seem to undergo changes from time to time. Comes the revolution and the postmaster will say Dvinsk, and where does that leave the class in geography?

INCONSISTENCY.

A reader calls attention to the fact that some of our amiable Democratic contemporaries are denouncing the Democrats of Texas for disregarding what may be called constitutional tradition as distinguished from constitutional law. There is no doubt, of course, that Presidential electors may vote for whomever they please without violating the letter of constitutional law, but custom for generations has required the electors chosen in any state to vote for the nominee of their party. Texas Democrats and their brethren in some of the other southern states now threaten to disregard this tradition.

Our friend says that as a Republican he can understand and sympathize with the protest but he thinks it comes with poor grace from any Democrat friendly to Mr. Roosevelt. The rule against the third term was also a part of the constitutional tradition of this country and was of even longer standing than the electoral custom. Moreover, of the two, the limitation of Presidential tenure certainly was not the less important for the preservation of republican government.

It follows that Democrats who can accept a third and a fourth term without gagging are not precisely the persons to complain of the Texas innovation.

WHERE THE REDS ARE WHITE.

"What is White Russia?" asks F. C. Atwill of Chicago. "Every one is wondering, and I have been unable to find information in my encyclopedia."

Get a map which shows the boundaries of the so-called soviet republics and you will find it marked off as a fairly large portion of the western borderland of Russia, between the Ukraine on the south and the Leningrad area on the north. The origin of the name is declared unknown in "A Short History of Russia," by B. H. Sumner [1943]. The Britannica gives the legendary explanation that the natives wear white smocks, coats, and leggings.

* * *

This region was seized from Lithuania and Poland in 1772 and 1793. After the Mongol invasions of the 12th, 13th, and 14th centuries, the Russian population seems to have developed into two racial and linguistic groups—the Great Russians of the central area and the White Russians and Little Russians [Ukrainians] in the western and southwestern part of the country. The White Russian language differs from official Russian, which came from the Moscow region and may be called a dialect, but has its own literature.

* * *

The White Russians are regarded as the purest Slavic type by certain ethnologists. It is believed that when the Mongols swept over the land they took refuge in their forests and swamps, and escaped admixture with Tatar blood. The old saying, "Scratch a Russian and catch a Tatar" is not supposed to run true in this part of the vast soviet domain.

* * *

Their heads are wider than those of the Great Russians; their hair is brown, or light brown with a reddish tinge; their eyes are light brown. In Russian literature their peasantry is often mentioned as benign and laborious. In the 19th century their literature was crude and provincial; since then some good writers have come up, such as Yanko Kupalo and Michael Bagdanovich. There is a White Russian state university at Minsk.

JOSEPH AND SON, CARPENTERS.

"Joseph and Son, Carpenters":
This was the sign above the door,
But other symbols were on the floor—
Threshing fans and wooden plows;
Yokes for asses and for cows.

The Tribune read the sign and then
Entered the shop of the workingmen:
Joseph paused with lifted adz,
But Jesus smiled at the passing lads.

Then the Roman roared in warning tones
That chilled the marrow in the bones:
"Which of you today is boss?
For I have need of a heavy cross.

"In another town is a foe of Rome;
I'll nail him high and take his home;
But the cross I use for the rebel race
Is missing from the market place."

Joseph, the senior carpenter,
Searched among the cedar trees
And fashioned a cross from one of these;
But Jesus of Nazareth spliced the wood:
It was for another, yet he understood.

The Navy in Snug Harbor.

A slight pest of sailors are using the family flagship as a recreational pivot these days—they come aboard singly or in groups at all hours. With Daut and her girl friends, they rush in and out like a tribe of chattering chipmunks. Before dinner the gang drifts in for cocktails; then in a sudden panic about God-knows-what, out they flurry to devastate somebody's nice quiet tavern.

Past midnight, when good Daddies are dreaming of witch burnings with all the Hitlers and Hirohitos as centerpieces, they surge up the old gangplank with the subtlety of cowboys on pay day. But it's only an interlude to collect wits, repair makeups, and organize forays to other points. Early in the morning they scamper back to raid the icebox, count casualties, and review the evening's work.

A potential admiral from Kentucky snores on our spare couch this morning. He checks in here at 4 a. m. I'm warned not to disturb the darling—er, the softie! John Paul Jones wouldn't like such lack of ruggedness. Ah, the dawn! But what's the dawn good for, anyway? Only headachy Daddies with time bombs in their skulls have any use for daylight, and what good does it do them? No answer expected. Chiggers.

REACHING FOR STARS.

You scolded me for reaching for the stars,
Such lovely stars, so close above my head.
"You'll burn your fingers and the points will sting.
The star dust may get in your eyes," you said.

But see, just one step higher and a star
Will lie all creamy-soft within my hand.
And when I show you how its beauty glows,
Perhaps you'll understand.

B. F. asks: "Does a local board have the power to draft a man over 26 who is in an essential war industry? It came out in the papers there was a ban on drafting men over 26, yet they sent my husband his induction papers."

ANSWER: There was no "ban" on drafting men over 26; the change in regulations you mention applies only to men over 30, and even men in this age group may be called if needed to fill a quota.

R. K. writes: "I enlisted in the navy at 17 last October and was discharged Feb. 24 from the navy signal men's school for physical defects. Five other men were discharged at the same time, and we were taken to town and given $31.60 to buy civilian clothes and the navy kept our uniforms, even tho our discharges were honorable. Why were our uniforms taken away from us?"

ANSWER: Somebody made a mistake. The navy is being asked for an explanation. You were entitled to retain your uniforms if you wished.

FATIGUE AND PALPITATION OF THE HEART.

THERE is a type of heart weakness which will put on a most spectacular display of symptoms. Nevertheless, there is no demonstrable structural basis and every sufferer can be restored to health if given a reasonable opportunity.

The condition is called "neurocirculatory asthenia" and affects males preponderantly. The patient tires out after the mildest kind of effort and will exhibit breathlessness and a rapid pulse apparently without a tangible cause. Persons who are in hair trigger balance are likely victims. There is no substantial ground for believing that we are dealing with a cardiac malady. We are confronted merely with an upset sympathetic nervous system, which directs most of its attention to the pumping apparatus.

A typical case which came under my observation recently was a robust man—a mechanic—who had sustained a minor injury from which he had made a complete recovery. There was nothing in the nature of his accident to account for a heartbeat of 110 per minute. Yet he indulged in episodes of sighing and complained that he could scarcely walk a block without an overwhelming sense of exhaustion.

As a result of numerous examinations, organic disease was ruled out. After a conference with his foreman and his family, he agreed to undertake part time work. Thus encouraged, daily checks showed steady improvement until, within a month, the rhythm reached normal.

Physicians of long experience have encountered this same thing with people who are obliged to work overtime or all too steadily. For example, soldiers who have marched with full equipment may develop similar manifestations. If alcohol is used as a booster, the storm will break all the sooner.

The blood pressure frequently will be subnormal. This is true particularly when abysmal fatigue is present. All in all, the subject presents a melancholy picture which is inconsistent with his well nourished appearance. Many will be apprehensive, even depressed. Every twinge and ache may be interpreted as a sign of angina pectoris. It is highly desirable to convince the sufferer that there is nothing wrong with a single vital organ.

Treatment includes a proper mixture of rest and activity. In the case of our mechanic friend, his disability would have continued many months had he not returned to his job. Among soldiers, graduated exercises have been successful. Short periods of drill may be followed by an interval of relaxation. Such assignments alternate thruout the day. With the passing of time, a heavier load can be borne without the slightest inconvenience.

It may be difficult to persuade the patient that he is not ill. Resentful of this advice, he may wander from physician to physician without relief. These are the individuals who are gold mines for quacks of every variety and, occasionally, a miraculous cure will be effected.

Nervous fatigue is about the most common ailment that the medical man meets. While the source may be an infection, the chances are that if the heart rate is high, the seat of the trouble will be emotional.

DON'T DELUGE.

J. G. writes: Do you think a child or an adult can drink a quart of water at one time without injury to vital organs?

REPLY.

The average stomach will hold approximately three pints without overstretching. This pouch, which is very tiny at birth, gradually increases its capacity as growth occurs. The only safe rule is relatively small amounts at intervals.

FOOT DISTRESS.

H. R. writes: During the summer my feet ache and swell. Do you think swimming regularly will be of any assistance?

REPLY.

Any plan which will stimulate the circulation will be of value. Make certain that your heart and kidneys are on their good behavior.

PICKED UP.

Mrs. A. J. writes: Is osteomyelitis inherited?

REPLY.

No. The germs may reach the bone via the blood stream or from an infection on the surface of the body.

A Matisse or Cézanne would hesitate—
To paint it first? Or eat? He'd hardly know.
Well, why can't other things be done that way?

MR. THOMPSON IN AMERICA.

Chicago, July 7.—I read with interest Mayor Kelly's reply to the charges that Chicago is not war conscious made by C. V. R. Thompson, correspondent for the London Daily Express. The mayor characterizes Mr. Thompson as a "fly-by-night writer." However, the gentleman is no stranger to our shores.

He came to the United States in the early '30s as New York correspondent for his newspaper. After a few short years of residence and a series of flying visits to various parts of the country, he followed the usual course of visiting Englishmen by writing a half-baked yarn about America, attacking its various institutions and customs. This epic is entitled "I Lost My English Accent." The Chicago public library catalogs it as a "travel book," altho from the smattering of so-called humor, laced with large doses of prejudice and misinformation that it contains, it would sell better bound in paper and hawked along with some of the less edifying "comic books" on the stands.

Whatever the loss of Mr. Thompson's broad "a" might be, he retains his narrow, bigoted views. The whole spirit of American tolerance and freedom for all escapes him entirely. He is vastly astonished at the deference shown in newspaper accounts of Catholic religious ceremonies. He takes sly digs at the Jewish element. He cannot stomach Irish-Americans [or the Irish in any form] and the American police force, particularly that of New York, is little better than legalized terrorism. His greatest grievance was the crude attitude of Americans who responded to his outspoken insults with inquiries about the British war debt [now happily shelved].

Mr. Thompson has been so good as to acquire a taste for some minor details of life in these United States such as plumbing and ice water, but aside from such trivia, his feelings are revealed in the closing paragraph of his book: "Altho I was no longer a typical Englishman; altho I preferred the tang of New York to the more subtle flavor of London; altho I said 'swell' more often than 'divine' . . . I still had not entirely lost my English accent."

Genevieve Newman.

WHY HE'S FOR ROOSEVELT.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 6.—I am tired of hearing and reading about our President being called various names and running down the New Deal. After all, President Roosevelt was elected by the people, so therefore he is the people's choice; I don't care how many terms he might be elected to or how many years he will be President of our country as long as the people elect him; he must satisfy the majority of the people of the United States.

I am not a strict Democrat. I voted for Hoover, but not the last time he ran. I never forget those years the Republicans were in office, and how Mr. Roosevelt took us out of it. Sure, we had WPA and a bank holiday and NRA, which was for the benefit of the majority of the people—the working class, middle class, and also the home owners and manufacturers. The New Deal and the President helped us all some way or another. A lot of people are forgetting it all now. They have a short memory.

I say put the greatest President we ever had back in the White House next November election. As the old saying goes: "It is better to know the devil you know, than the devil you don't know," and, brother, we don't know Dewey. G. J. Hart.

THE MARTIAL MIND.

Chicago, July 4.—I've read your attempt to make respectable people out of a bunch of squawking lawyers from Hawaii and it makes me wonder what kind of people you are. You ask the military to risk their lives keeping enemies away from your hide, but the military must not make it rough for those civilians whose activities make its job harder. Just what business have those lawyers to demand special consideration in military courts?

As soon as martial law was eased Judge Metzger issued a habeas corpus writ for a Heinie who was caught snooping near military installations, and when Gen. Richardson did not produce this Heinie in court the judge had the gall to fine him, and The Tribune has the gall to uphold the judge. Nice isn't it?

When boys in uniform must face hardships and death, the civilian Heinies must have their comfort, even if they interfere. Another civilian was arrested for being abusive to a guard at Pearl Harbor, he, too, was issued a writ by Judge Metzger. There's a war on. Boys in uniform go to the guardhouse for AWOL or trying to get information to their family, and it may be necessary. But why such tender feeling for squawking lawyers and smart aleck civilians?

Oluf L. Veien.
106th Inf., AEF, 1918.

HOW HE GOT HERE.

Chicago, July 7.—It is indeed regrettable that C. V. R. Thompson, British news correspondent, failed to give us Chicagoans fair warning of his visit here, for had we known I am certain that the majority of us would have kept our cars off the streets in order not to distress the gentleman.

Incidentally, just how did this patriotic representative of the British press get around while in Chicago? Surely, he didn't hire a taxi or use a private automobile, for that would only have burned up additional gas. He must have done all his traveling in street cars.

How did he manage to get to Chicago in the first place? Not by plane or train; certainly his conscience wouldn't have permitted him to take up space that could have been filled by an American soldier coming home on furlough or leaving for camp. He must have thumbed a ride, or maybe he rode the rails.

How did Mr. Thompson get here from Great Britain? No street cars, no automobiles to flag down, no rails to ride. Certainly, he wouldn't have considered flying or sailing over, which would have meant taking up space that could have been utilized for military purposes. I have it. He swam all the way.

TWIST OF A KNOB IS ALL IT TAKES TO FLY FORTRESS

BY EUGENE GRIFFIN.

It is as simple to fly a Flying Fortress as to tune in W-G-N on the radio with the recently disclosed automatic electronic pilot now used on the army's four engine bombers. A twist of a knob makes the big plane dip and roll or hold a table-steady course for a bombing run.

The auto-pilots, which are manufactured by the Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator company at 1135 N. Cicero av., can do almost any maneuver a human pilot can do manually except take off and land. Their use was demonstrated on a flight for newspaper men from Chicago airport in a Flying Fortress last week.

All You Do Is Move Knob.

"Each of you will have a turn at flying the plane with the auto-pilot," they were told. "Just move the knob to where you want to fly. It's no harder than pushing a pencil."

A few minutes later, 8,000 feet above Chicago's south side, The Tribune reporter, who never had been up in an airplane before, was grabbing onto rods and ammunition frames to keep from rattling around in the waist of the Fortress.

"Are we shaking apart?" he asked.

"O, that's just one of the other reporters trying to sky-write," said a crew member.

"Does he have to scribble like this?"

Dual Controls Are Used.

C. W. Opsahl, a Northwest Airlines pilot captain, was the pilot in charge, and retained general control of the plane at all times during the flight. Reporters were allowed to work the auto-pilot on a dual control arrangement in the bombardier's glass house in the nose. W. J. McGoldrich, Minneapolis-Honeywell vice president in charge of aeronautical engineering, was in the nose to instruct the amateurs, and to tell them to keep swallowing air so their ears wouldn't hurt.

The Fortress was an army air forces materiel command ship, lent to Minneapolis-Honeywell for experimental purposes. The command has worked with the company in the development of the electro-mechanical robot pilot.

When The Tribune reporter took his place in the glass nose and the plane went into maneuvers, he felt as if he were riding a roller coaster while sitting at the front window on top of a double decker Michigan av. bus.

Going 260 Miles an Hour.

The altitude was 11,500 feet. The speed was 260 miles an hour.

"Now this is the auto-pilot, with the knob," said McGoldrich. He pointed to a small black box, with a short metal arm and a knob something like a telegrapher's key. "If you want to bank this way, or that way, just move the knob so. Take it away."

The reporter moved the knob, and the plane turned the number of degrees indicated. The auto-pilot worked as neatly as the control board the elevator operators punch in Tribune Tower when you say, "Four, please."

The reporter set the pilot for an 18 degree bank to port. That night he went home and told his wife he had flown a Flying Fortress.

JUMPS IN LAKE TO SAVE PADDLE; 2 RESCUE HIM

Charles Moulds, 25, of 7427 S. Shore dr., a salesman, was in the Jackson Park hospital last night suffering from shock after narrowly escaping drowning in the lake 150 feet off the beach at 75th st. Moulds, who was sailing in a kayak with a companion, Chester Olsen, of 6842 Jeffery av., jumped overboard to recover a paddle and was caught in the backwash of waves breaking against the pier. Olsen's call for help brought lifeguards Dan Kerins, 7534 Coles av., and Richard Berk, 117 S. Throop st., each 17, who swam 200 feet to reach Moulds.

ECHO ANSWERS CALL INTO MINE; BELIEVE 66 DEAD

Bellaire, O., July 9 (AP).—Drillers today broke into the tunnel where 66 coal miners were imprisoned 400 feet underground by fire last Wednesday, but hope of finding any of the men alive virtually vanished when only echoes answered calls down the nine inch vent over a surface amplifier.

A smaller, three inch drill about 1,200 feet away continued to punch towards another spot in Ohio's largest mine at Powhatan where fellow workers hoped other trapped men had erected barricades against smoke and fumes and might be alive.

After the break-thru to the tunnel Inspector O. V. Simpson of the United States bureau of mines lowered a telephone connected to an amplifier.

"Hello," he called.

The tense rescue party heard only the echo of Simpson's voice, accompanied by a steady drip-drop from an underground spring. The 30 watchers were grimly silent.

Work was begun on a slope entry into the mine to recover bodies.

CHICAGO RELIEF ROLL DROPS TO NEW LOW: 32,000

Persons receiving general assistance from the Chicago welfare administration were at a new low of 32,000 as June closed the city's fiscal year, it was reported yesterday by G. J. Klupar, welfare commissioner.

The peak load during the eight years that care of the needy has been a local responsibility was in March, 1939, when 277,000 persons received assistance. In September, 1940, the figure was 203,000 persons, but the load has decreased continually since then for 46 consecutive months—a net reduction of 84.2 per cent.

Eight years ago, with the works progress administration in its infancy, the welfare administration was the primary source of assistance to the needy in Chicago. Today other relief programs share the burden. Old age pensions go to 43,000 needy Chicagoans, unemployment compensation benefits are aiding 8,000 persons; aid to dependent children is being paid to 30,000 mothers and minor children, and the blind pension program provides for 1,700 persons.

FREED SLAYER SEIZED IN FATAL TAVERN FIGHT

Edmund O'Dea, 30, an ex-convict who was freed last May after he shot and killed Louis Keller, also an ex-convict and drug addict, was seized last night as one of two men accused of fatally beating Joseph W. Reidy, 38, of 1002 W. 63d st., outside a tavern at 737 W. 64th st., last Wednesday. Reidy, a railroad switchman, died yesterday in Bridewell hospital.

Police said Patrick Prendergast, 6116 May st., the bartender, and James Godfrey, 6407 Peoria st., identified O'Dea as one of two men who pushed Reidy into the street after the three had quarrelled at the bar. O'Dea admitted he had been in the tavern, but denied he was in the fight.

The grand jury voted a no-bill against O'Dea in the Keller slaying. O'Dea, who lives at 6443 Peoria st., pleaded that Keller "either drunk or full of dope started pushing me around" and he shot him with a revolver he took from Keller.

FOUND DEAD IN HIS ROOM.

Gershom Thomas, 54, a market laborer, was found dead in his room at 2958 Madison st. yesterday, apparently of natural causes.

Boy, 3, Is Electrocuted by Floor Lamp Current

Harry Kennedy Jr., 3, of 10605 Avenue J, was electrocuted last night when he climbed on a radiator and touched the shaft of a floor lamp. His father, who picked him up, also received a shock but was not injured. A fire rescue squad under Lt. William Fitzgerald worked on the child for two and a half hours in an attempt to revive him. Police said they found a short circuit in the lamp.

Marines All Set to Land—in Social Whirl!

BY JUDITH CASS.

CHICAGO'S already traditional reputation for hospitality has been growing by leaps and bounds thru the welcomes to local homes that are being given visiting service men, both from this country and from abroad. Over the week-end of July 28 eight marines stationed in Chicago will enjoy a few days of fishing, speed boat riding, and "just plain resting" at Lake Delavan, Wis., as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Leverone and Dr. and Mrs. Melford E. Zinser.

The resort is so excited over the prospect of entertaining them that Saturday evening, July 29, has been set aside as "Marine Night" at the Lake Delavan Country club. Following a buffet dinner that night in the Zinser home, where the group will be staying, the marines will escort the Leverones' subdebutante daughter, Meredith, to the club. Also up for the week-end will be Capt. Arthur A. Engel, public relations officer for the marine corps, central division.

British Flyers Feted.

Royal air force officers who have taken advantage of a blanket invitation from the Chicago branch of the English Speaking union to visit this city have sent back glowing descriptions of Chicago hospitality.

Members of the union willing to entertain flyers on leave have listed their names at the union's headquarters, and a typical week's entertainment offered to four R. A. F. officers still has the north shore buzzing with excitement. Mrs. Charles R. Walgreen, who is spending the summer in Dixon, Ill., turned over her town house to the quartet, composed of an Australian, a Welshman, an Englishman, and an Irishman, during its Chicago stay.

The four young officers [who are spoken of with deference among the younger crowd as "older men—24 or 25"] also spent several days with the F. H. Towners in Evanston, Mrs. Raymond E. Durham in Winnetka, and the Ernest S. Ballards in Hubbard Woods. The hosts, with the aid of some pretty young women, arranged a gay program of swimming, dancing, and sight seeing for the young men. Over the last week-end other members were busy showing the city to Pilot Officer R. F. Hulbert, on leave from the R. A. F. base in Lachine, Que., who arrived Friday just as the other four departed for Canada.

Here and There.

Mrs. Durham's Winnetka home is a busy place these days, for she also has as house guests her daughter and her young grandson, Mrs. Henry Varnum Poor, and Henry Jr. Mrs. Poor and her son arrived a short time ago from their home in Mill Neck, N. Y., for a brief visit with her mother. Also a guest at the Durham home is Lt. [j.g.] Daniel Poor of New York City, who just has returned from 18 months of active duty in the Pacific area. His brother, Henry, who bears the same navy rank, is still in that theater of war.

Following a six months' assignment in England, Trevor Stamp returned to his post in Washington, D. C., on July 1. As yet it is still indefinite as to whether he will arrive in Evanston, where Mrs. Stamp and their two children make their home with her mother, Mrs. Charles H. Bosworth, before his 8 year old son, Buster, leaves for camp. Buster and his cousin, June Padley, will travel west on July 25 to attend a summer camp in Estes Park, Colo. When Buster returns home in the fall, he will be in Evanston only a short time before leaving again, this time for boarding school in Canada.

Aug. 1 has been set as tentative moving day by the junior Stanley G. Harrisses, who have bought a new home in Glencoe. Temporarily they are at home in Winnetka with Mr. Harris' parents. Mrs. Albert Willard Adcock, the former Ruth Harris, plans to remain in New York, where she enrolled last month in the School of Social Work, until Lt. Comdr. Adcock returns from his present assignment in the South Pacific. Her sister, Miss Cynthia Harris, will spend the summer as a

A Perfect Summer Day Thrills Knollwood Horse Show Crowd

Equestrian enthusiasts have a suspicion that Mrs. Donald Easter, chairman of the committee for the Knollwood horse show, gazed into the crystal ball to pick a perfect summer day for the second annual show held yesterday at the Knollwood country club.

Most spectators viewed the show from automobiles parked around the ring. Miss Louise Young, Miss Helen Milman, and Miss Marion Peters were in the Donald Best car. Two WAVE officers were in the Paul Loeber's convertible. Mrs. Loeber was outstanding in a pink wool sports dress and a large pink straw hat topped with matching roses.

The day's events began in the morning with the bridal path event, which was won by Mrs. Louis Swift Jr. She showed excellent horsemanship by winning two other events, including the hunter's class for which she received the president's trophy for the second consecutive year. The trophy, a silver pitcher, was awarded by George W. Rosseter, who presented it to the show last year.

One of the proudest winners of the day was 3 year old Edward Thomas Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Foss Wilson, who acquired four ribbons to pin on his chest. Mrs. Wilson, wearing a green linen print and matching hat, watched her son from the rail surrounding the large ring.

Mileste Benedict's mother, Mrs. James E. Baggot, attired in a cool lime colored crepe with a pleated skirt, also watched her daughter from the sidelines.

Among the winners who received ribbons from Col. Chester L. Fordney of the Marine corps, were Judy and Susie Coffin, the Charles A. Coffins' young daughters; Peter Easter, who won the blue ribbon in the children's horsemanship class for riders under 8 years old, and Barbara Bentley, who received the William Roy Carney challenge trophy in the junior jumpers' class. Mrs. Charles Dennehy and her three children, Charles Jr., Wilson, and Virginia made a pretty picture as they rode together in the family class, winning first place honors.

Program sellers included Miss Joan Monroe in a blue and white print jersey, Miss Flossie Curtis wearing cool aqua linen, and Miss Martha Stevens in a sports dress of grey and white striped crepe. Mrs. Thomas Allen, the former Jere Manierre, and Flight Sgt. Allen, R. C. A. F., were among the many spectators, as were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hampton Monroe, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Reddy and their daughter, Joan, the William Roy Carneys, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Champ Carry and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Steele.

Proceeds will be given to a charity to be decided later by the committee.

'Pop Concert' in Grant Park Is Refreshing

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

Sunday is "Pop" night with the Grant Park Symphony orchestra, and under Rudolph Ganz' genial guidance the word retained its attractiveness and lost the occasional terrors of the connotation.

For Mr. Ganz has the wit to choose music that is both widely loved and good, and the ability to play it for its original freshness as if the grooves had not been worn thin by ten thousand repetitions. And because the conductor declined to become perfunctory about familiar tasks, the orchestra consistently responded to his baton with playing that was crisp, bright, and alert.

Without indulging in any musical somersaults Mr. Ganz saw to it that the overture to Nicolai's "The Merry Wives of Windsor" sparkled, that the first movement of Schubert's "Unfinished" sang wistfully with an undercurrent of tragedy that artfully evaded the melodramatic, and that Grieg's "Peer Gynt" suite shone with the clarity and inspiration the composer originally poured into it. One might only cavil that the "Hall of the Mountain King" did not sound quite as terrifying as Peer must have found it.

The big moment of the evening came with Reinhold Schmidt's singing of Wotan's Farewell from Wagner's "Die Walkure" for which nature obligingly provided a setting of open sky and streaming sunset of true Wagnerian splendor. Mr. Schmidt, Mr. Ganz, and the orchestra rose to the challenge with a performance that had majestic proportions.

Later, with Robert MacDonald at the piano, Mr. Schmidt again distinguished himself in Rachmaninoff's "At Night" and Deems Taylor's "May Day Carol," and pleased the audience, which was 25,000 strong, with Wolfe's "Gwine to Hebben."

Thru the Looking Glass

One of the most attractive women we have ever known is fat. She is enormous. Trying to analyze why she is, despite what all the beauty experts, the fashion arbiters, and the psychologists rate as a handicap, one of the most stunning and charming of women we decided it was because she makes a cult of cleanliness.

You never think of her as being "sloppy," which is the first descriptive word that comes to mind when you index so many women who are overly stout. There is something so shiny about her grooming that in some curious fashion her very stoutness becomes an asset and you marvel at her distinction.

You're stout for one of two reasons: Maybe you can't help it—heredity, a glandular disturbance, or even emotional makeup are the contributing factors. Or you're fat simply because you don't mind being that way, do nothing about it, and see no necessity for doing anything about it. In either case you're a fat woman and as such, if you want to make an asset instead of a liability of your avoirdupois, you have a special obligation—which is to be exquisitely clean, of person, of clothing and of accessories.

The slender women can get by with imperfections of grooming. You can't. Just because you're fat people will be quick to condemn you as a sloven, so you must be extra careful. You must scrub twice as often, brush twice as often as the woman whose silhouette is average. If you're beautifully groomed your weight is not the handicap it might be.

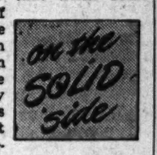
Idle Chatter Shatters Idol, if It's Coarse!

BY MAUREEN DALY.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Think before you speak! Chances are ten to one that when some young sweet stuff becomes coarse and common in her conversation it is because she doesn't really know what she's saying or hasn't thought twice before saying it. Many a pleasant pigeon may look like Emily Post in person, mild and well-mannered, until she starts to talk. Often this honeychile is unsure of herself and feels she must add a punch line to her conversation by throwing in a rough word here and there for verbal color.



It may not be out-and-out profanity, but just a careless parroting of phrases and catchwords, picked up in odd places and not quite understood.

And if the gal knew what she was saying she might think twice before using the kind of lingo that even a truck driver wouldn't use on a clear day!

Sometimes a girl may delude herself into thinking it is a kind of sophistication to sprinkle her chatter with coarse expressions that make the other girls look round eyed. But that kind of talk isn't even in the slightly smart department.

Shoddy conversation presupposes shoddy thinking, and no girl wants to start her thoughts on a permanent downgrade.

And the boys won't find you more "companionable" either, for fellows are never impressed by any kind of self-disrespect, even verbal. Any John Doe likes to think that his particular honeychile is really as sweet and lovely as she looks; that "lady on a pedestal" routine still goes. You have an ideal to live up to, so watch that idle chatter. He might expect it out of the mouths of babes—but certainly not from you!

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

Seventy-five members of the Garden club of Illinois will meet at luncheon at 12:30 p. m. today in the English room of Marshall Field's tearoom to hear a report by Mrs. Berthold A. Cronson, chairman of the organization's war service committee, which has as a project the floral decorations of the Chicago service men's centers.

Following luncheon, the women will go to center No. 1, 176 W. Washington st., to see 25 floral arrangements placed there by members of the war service committees of 11 member clubs.

Every Friday a committee meets at the center to arrange flowers contributed by the Allied Florists' association and by individual members from their own gardens.

Forty recreational officers of the marine corps women's reserve, all lieutenants, who have come to Chicago from every section of the United States, are taking an intensive two weeks' course at George Williams college, 5315 Drexel av. The Chicago park district is cooperating in the instruction, which will equip the officers to administer the total recreation program of women marines.

Training is being given in the classroom and outdoors. Subjects include administration, psychology, dancing, parties, music, both instrumental and vocal, dramatics, arts and crafts, and organization of groups. Sailing, baseball, and photography also are on the students' program, as is a study of recreation material.

"Best bond seller" is the title which employes of Mills Industries, Inc., 4100 Fullerton av., manufacturers of war material, have given to Harriet Zara, electrical department worker. Miss Zara brought in $11,900 in bonds as her share of the $200,000 quota.

The Mills war bond drive was under the direction of the WOWs [woman ordnance workers], who had the responsibility for sales thruout all three of the company's plants.

Bernstein Ends Ravinia Run on a Busy Note

Concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Leonard Bernstein, conductor; Jennie Tourel, mezzo-soprano. Presented at Ravinia Sunday afternoon, July 9, 1944. The program: Overture to "La Gazza Ladra"..Rossini Suite from the Film, "Our Town"..Copland [First Performance in Chicago.] Aria from "Cinderella"..Rossini Symphony, "Jeremiah"..Bernstein [First Performance in Chicago.] Symphony No. 1, E. minor..Sibelius

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

All sorts of temperamental fireworks were set off at Ravinia yesterday afternoon, some soaring symmetrically in planned formation, some spluttering into duds. It was Leonard Bernstein's last concert with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and he made it a busy one, introducing two new scores, Aaron Copland's suite from "Our Town," and his own "Jeremiah" symphony, the latter with Jennie Tourel as soloist. Miss Tourel blazed her own trail of success by making her bow in a florid aria from Rossini's "Cinderella," which she sang with superb skill and generally enticing results that explained why Rossini once wrote his Rosina in "The Barber" for mezzo soprano. Coloratura in the grand style blends bewitchingly with cream in coffee tone.

The third facet of Mr. Bernstein's talents, that of composer, is undeniably impressive. His "Jeremiah" is a sound piece of work. Hebraic in feeling rather than in actual musical content. Its prophetic opening is grave and thoughtful, rising to a crescendo of declamation, then subsiding into foreboding silence. The second movement, the profanation of the temple, seemed to me rhetorical rather than actual, the telling of a story of terror that somehow had lost the sadism that was its motivation. The lamentation, a wailing cry for mezzo soprano, also had that quality of things past and not quite real, until the voice cried out in defiance over a brazen background, leaping to blazing life before it fell again into a brooding sorrow, now deeply touching, a muted sound of immemorial mourning.

The Copland score, devoted to the Grover's Corners of Thornton Wilder's play, is extraordinarily like the scene in "Rodeo" which suggests humanity pressing against an infinity of space. It is imaginative music, inescapably lonely as the sound of a train whistle in the distance at night. Indigenous to the soil it sings about, it is clear, direct and intelligent music.

Both these scores came off well in the playing, and Mr. Bernstein did some interesting work in Rossini's lyrical overture about the thievish magpie as the night before he had done in Stravinsky's "Firebird." But the repetition of Sibelius' First Symphony was another story. Some of it was splendid. It had a rich, vibrant legato that piled up throbbing climaxes, but it also had some major errors, particularly one in the second movement that might have cracked up a less seasoned orchestra. It was too intent on being apocalyptic to be accurate.

With his wealth of talent already exciting audiences to an uproar, it is up to Mr. Bernstein to learn a technique worthy of that talent. Then he will know how to do what he wants to do, which is the only reasonable basis for conducting. But don't misunderstand me. I am on his side in the argument. Talent is precious stuff, and all he needs is time. As a veteran maestro said of him the other night, "Bernstein was born with something, and he doesn't look like a fool."

'Jam Session' Is Frothy, Tho Amusing, Film

"JAM SESSION."

A Columbia picture, directed by Charles Barton, featuring Ann Miller and Jess Barker, and presented at the Oriental.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

"Jam Session" might be described as an orgy of orchestras.

It starts out with No Idea, completely surrounded by boogy-woogying bandsmen and goes on from there. Meaning exactly what I say.

Handsome Writer [Jess Barker] is called to Hollywood to evolve a movie script around the musical activities of seven orchestras—Jan Garber's, Teddy Powell's, Charlie Barnet's, Alvino Rey's, Glen Gray's, Louis Armstrong's, and the Pied Pipers. He is full of enthusiasm, feeling that his muse will come to his aid at any minute. But—the bands play on—and his copy paper remains blank. . . .

Now there has arrived in Hollywood a young girl from Waterfall, Kas. [Ann Miller]. She has won a local dance contest and a round trip ticket to the movie center. She bears a letter of introduction from the local paper's movie critic, which, I blushingly relate, gets her just nowhere. . . .

Being a young woman of ingenuity and brass she wangles her way into the writer's realm as secretary—tho she doesn't know the first thing about stenography. Her bright little brain provides him with an idea—and her woeful ignorance as to pothooks messes same all up for him. . . . Eventually, of course, Writer turns out a Winnah, starring—the Waterfall maid.

Aside from the music, most of which I thought horrible, the piece is amusing. Miss Miller and Jess Barker make a pleasing team. In the finale the former treats you to some of her most special tap dancing. I think Ann is charming! So much ZZZZ-ip!

Supporting players are capable and the director handled his frothy material with the required light touch.

See you tomorrow.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 9.—Let's give the home boys a chance. Lloyd Nolan practically stole "Guadalcanal Diary." He's a swell actor, a nice fellow, so how about giving him the lead in "A Bell for Adano" instead of borrowing an outsider? Look what happened to John Hodiak when he was borrowed for "Lifeboat." He returned to his home lot [MGM] a star. Why not make a star of your own? . . . Richard Whorf isn't superstitious, but his numerologist says June 13 is his lucky day—and on that day he was given "Autumn Fever" to direct. It's about a middle-aged business man who falls in love with a hat check cutie, the latter to be played by Jean Grahame from New York. . . . Brian Aherne rehearsing with Katharine Cornell in New York in "Barretts of Wimpole Street" preparatory to going overseas to give performances for men in the armed forces. They expect to be gone months.

Long Ago.

When Cecil De Mille was being introduced to Tom Dewey, Dewey put out his hand and said, "I need no introduction. Just want to thank him for making my wife a movie offer." . . . Since Betty Hutton bought Johnny Hyde's hilltop home, it means Lillian Gish, who's been living there, will have no place to go. . . . Franchot Tone got a love letter from Joan Crawford—a fan who lives in Scotland. . . . Lois Collier switched to Helmut Dantine. He's building up his name thru the glamor routine. Well, he's not the first to become known thru beautiful women, and more's the pity—he won't be the last. . . . Binnie Barnes and husband, Mike Frankovitch, adopted a third child. . . . What's in a name? "A great deal," says Louis Armstrong. He's doing all right with 'em. In his band is Trumpeter Alexander Hamilton. Other members include George Washington and Abraham Lincoln. What, no Teddy Roosevelt?

Marlene Dietrich telling friends she'll go overseas again this summer before making another picture. . . . Candy Jones' torch for George Givot, the "Mexican Hayride" comic, rivals the Statue of Liberty. . . . Lucius Boomer, Waldorf Astoria big boss, en route here. I'm wondering if that means he'll supervise the filming of "Week-end at the Waldorf?" . . . Whatever happened to Mayor La Guardia's plan to make New York the new Hollywood? . . . Jack Warner, arch supporter of war films, is doing escapist flickers like mad. . . . Production stopped on "Christmas in Connecticut" because of Sydney Greenstreet's bronchial attack. . . . George Raft dieting.

Have a Heart.

Both Barbara Stanwyck and Lauren Bacall testing for lead in "Fountainhead." Hold everything! Barbara Stanwyck is too well established in the hearts of her fans to be competing with a newcomer, no matter how good she is. . . . No wonder we're called saps. Those of us who do three jobs at once to make ends meet can't get gas enough to run our business. But Count Haugwitz-Reventlow was able to get enough to drive from Pasadena, Cal., to Vancouver, B. C. . . . Freddie McEvoy, pal of Errol Flynn, was also lucky. He got enough gas to take his wife, their little baby, and five dogs to Mexico City. That's something for the OPA to get their schnozzles into. . . . All relatives aren't in key positions. Hal Roach's brother is a grip at Twentieth, and Joan Blondell's brother an electrician at Warners. . . . Olivia de Havilland in hospital for checkup and complete rest.

This and That.

The other day Margaret O'Brien ate four strawberry sundaes in "Music for Millions." Then went to lunch, and said, "I'm not hungry—I'll just have a hamburger and dill pickle." . . . Universal postponed the starting date of Susanna Foster's picture because of her illness. . . . It may be twins for the Forrest Tuckers in September. . . . Spike Jones changing his daughter's name from Linda Lee to Lindley. That's his name, too.

Music Festival to Hear 'Choir' of Trombones

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

A children's chorus of 1,000 voices and a trombone choir of 300 players will be featured at the 15th annual Chicago Music Festival, to be held in Soldiers' field on Saturday night, Aug. 19. The children's choir will be directed by John G. Rieck, choral conductor of Tabor Lutheran school. The trombone choir will be led by Jaroslav Cimera, one of the nation's outstanding trombone soloists.

The children will sing "The Nation's Prayer," an adaptation of Cesar Franck's "Panis Angelicus," accompanied by the trombone choir. The trombonists also will play "The Lost Chord," by Arthur Sullivan.

Capt. Howard Stube, general chairman of instrumental participation in the festival, says that this will be the world's largest trombone choir.

Mr. Rieck and his children's choirs have given many concerts in Chicago. The children for this festival chorus will come from the Lutheran churches holding summer schools. Both boys and girls will be in the chorus and adults and juveniles in the trombone ensemble.

The trombonists are students of both the public and Catholic schools and adults from the studios of the leading trombone teachers of this city and vicinity. Any one wishing to join either group should apply to Capt. Stube at festival headquarters in Tribune Tower.

INSTALMENT XIII.

JUNGLE CASUALTY.

A gleam of admiration shone in St. John's eyes. He drawled. "And you mean to destroy that base before time has altogether run out."

"That's right," said Jed.

"I may be able to help you. After all, I am an engineer, after a fashion."

"Thanks." Jed looked into his eyes and then nodded with satisfaction. "I'll take you up on that when the time comes. Right now, I think you'd better. Bart, let's get going."

Jed and Bart were back at the cove just as dawn was faintly coloring the sky. The grenades were gone and the barrel of Jed's rifle was still warm to the touch. There was a deep dent in his helmet. Bart had a blood-clotted bandage around his left forearm. The two men were tired and needed rest, but they stood patiently by the rock investigating the cove with their eyes.

They started down the trail toward the cove. Bart said, "I still maintain, sir, that we should have determined what was delaying the two pilots before leaving last evening."

"No. They have to learn to get along without our help."

"Are four more dead Jap soldiers so important?"

Jed nodded. "They are. These people—they are unimportant—of no use to any one." He paused and looked out over the sea, a hard light in his eyes. "Some day," he said, "there will be American troops on this peninsula, fighting to take it away from the Japs. He is the man who is important, that soldier. By destroying, now, we help him to live."

"I hadn't thought of it that way."

"Neither had I, until our guests arrived."

They continued down the trail and in a few moments had shoved aside the thorn barrier and were on the back of the boat. There was a light on in the main salon. When they stepped thru the doorway they looked squarely into the muzzle of a gun in the hands of the Englishman.

St. John stared at them and then lowered the gun. "You were so quiet," he said, "I thought—" He ran a shaking hand over his forehead.

Jed looked about the room, puzzled. Mae and Ellen were sitting together on the lounge, their shoulders touching, their differences temporarily forgotten. Banning was staring into space. Riddell was standing near him, pulling at his lower lip. He seemed to be badly shaken.

Jed said, "Well?" They all turned to look at Riddell.

He ran a hand over his slack mouth and said, "I left the boat and walked around the edge of the cove. When I got on the gulf side I could see the wreck of the torpedo boat. Richard was lying in the sand near the wreck. Standing over him, looking at me out of yellow eyes, was this, this beast. I've never seen anything so big. He stood with his head down, watching me, and his tail went slowly back and forth. My—my first thought was self-preservation, I guess, I got up in a tree in nothing flat. That—that thing almost tore it out of the ground trying to get at me. I emptied the revolver squarely into him. It only made him angrier, like using a B. B. gun."

He shook his head with painful memory of the scene and St. John said, "That's where I found him, up in the tree. There wasn't much I could do. I am not a bad shot with a rifle, but that time I missed. Unnerved by the sight, I suppose. Of course, Richard Cary was dead, had been for some time. The tiger picked up young Cary in his mouth, slung him over his powerful shoulders and vanished into the jungle before I could shoot again."

There was a long silence. Jed broke it by saying, "Tigers often do that. I've seen them carry off good sized animals that way."

Mae Nolan said, "Must we talk over the technique of the thing? Can't we drop it?

Her voice broke and she leaned against Ellen, sobbing. "Such a kid. He was only a kid."

Jed did not know what to say. He felt lost. The jungle, to him, was something one accepted, like the weather. Richard Cary had not known enough about it to exercise the necessary caution.

He turned away from their eyes and bumped into Bart, standing close against him. His eyes went back to the others, and he said, "Sorry, but we need our sleep."

Mae repeated, "Sorry, we need our sleep. Of all the crazy things to say—" She suddenly got to her feet and stood in front of him, her eyes blazing. "You told us about the jungle, didn't you? Sure you did. You warned us. None of us has been in a jungle before, but a warning is supposed to be enough. You couldn't tell us we'd have to travel in pairs, with rifles. Lots of things you couldn't do. We're unimportant." Her hand shot out and she slapped his face, bringing a spot of red to his cheek. "You," she sobbed, "you're no better than that beast—three feet of water over the reef and the schooner draws more. But you'll let the men work on the boat, teasing them, playing with them. Because you can't be bothered with them. You—"

She slapped him again and then turned and ran down the passage to the aft stateroom. Jed looked after her with no expression. His glance swung to Ellen Banning and he thought, "One piece of the wall is gone."

Ellen Banning's courage, large or small, was in direct proportion to that of the man in whose company she happened to be. With Captain Jed Reed she feared nothing, and knew it consciously.

The two sat on a fallen tree trunk a mile down from the cove and a few hundred yards in from the sea. A rushing mountain stream passed close by them, cut thru a narrow clearing and then tumbled into the sea. A cow rhino' and her young calf were standing in the middle of the stream by the edge of a turbulent pool. The mother was patiently trying to coax the youngster into the pool, but the little rhino' was afraid of the water's swirling noise and refused to budge.

Ellen smiled. "I think it's cute. The mother looks like a harmless old creature from here."

"Yes; from here. The rhino's sight isn't very good and when they get frightened they just charge off in any direction. Otherwise, they're harmless enough."

Ellen moved a fraction, so that their shoulders touched. "I've never known any one like you before."

Jed was not interested. "Really?"

"Yes; really. During the past week I have been—well—watching you. There is something so completely masculine about you, so hard, and yet—"

"Better end it there."

Her eyes looked into his. "Not afraid, are you? You aren't deceiving me, Capt. Reed. That concrete wall you've built around yourself is full of cracks."

He shrugged. "It isn't important; not in this jungle."

"But it is!" she cried.

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

What has happened to the old fashioned rolled cookie, anyway? The kind you can remember sneaking out of grandma's cookie jar. The big pale sugar cookies, thick, but not too soft; the thinner, dark molasses cookies, and the ones with raisins poked in the middle.

They've gone, most of them, to make room for more drop cookies. Today's cook frets at the bother of rolling and cutting cookies, a time-taking job and a floury one. The drop cookie tastes just as good, maybe even better, to anyone not troubled with nostalgia over the kind of cooking which came out of mother's or grandmother's kitchen.

Lemon-Oatmeal Drop Cookies.
[Three dozen.]

- ½ cup fat
- ½ cup granulated sugar
- ½ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
- 1 egg
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- ¾ cup sifted flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon soda
- 2½ cups rolled oats

Cream shortening, add sugars and mix until fluffy. Add egg, beating until light. Add lemon rind and juice. Sift flour with salt and soda and add with oats to creamed mixture. Drop from a teaspoon onto a greased baking sheet. Bake at 375 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes. Raisins or nuts may be added to the cookie recipe. I like ½ cup finely chopped pecans in these cookies.

Molasses Drops.
[About five dozen.]

- ¾ cup shortening
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup molasses
- 4 cups sifted flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon soda
- 2 teaspoons cinnamon
- 2 teaspoons ginger
- ½ cup water

Cream shortening and sugar thoroly and beat in egg. Mix well and add molasses. Sift flour, salt, soda, and spices together and add alternately with water. Drop from a spoon onto a greased cookie sheet and bake about 15 minutes in a 375 degree oven.

These cookies keep very well in a covered canister. I like to frost them, a few at a time, so that the frosting needn't stale [it won't keep fresh as long as the cookies]. A butter frosting made with confectioners' sugar and flavored with grated lemon rind and juice complements the molasses and spice of the cookie better than any other, I think.

Then add flour mixture and beat until smooth; add 2 tablespoons shortening, melted. Bake on greased, hot griddle. Makes 1½ dozen small cakes.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Green Beans in Sour Cream.
[Serves four.]

- 1 pound green beans, slivered
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 2 tablespoons parsley, chopped
- 2 tablespoons margarine
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1 teaspoon vinegar
- Salt and pepper
- ½ cup sour cream

Cook beans in boiling water until tender. Meanwhile saute onion and parsley in margarine and stir in flour. Measure ½ cup liquid from beans; add to flour paste and cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Add sugar, vinegar, salt and pepper to taste, and sour cream. Pour over beans and serve.

There's Waste of Sweetness in 'Wildflower'

"WILDFLOWER."

Operetta with book and lyrics by Otto Harbach and Oscar Hammerstein II., music by Herbert Stothart and Vincent Youmans. Book directed by Doug Leavitt and Joseph E. BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

A great many things have happened to "Wildflower" in its current Civic Opera house incarnation, but none of them seemed as important Saturday afternoon as the blissful fact that the big house was as cool as its rose velvet seats were soft. They could have charged admission just as a refuge. But there was a show going on, too, and as operetta stock companies go, it had some points worth encouraging. The production operation is smoother now, the lighting is expertly on cue, the dancing has come up a notch, little Barbara Scully is a decorative Texas spitfire who sings sweetly [tho an unflattering makeup suggests that girl in "Oklahoma!" who is 18 but looks every day of 19], and Arthur Maxwell is attractive as the cowboy of the interpolated whistling song, despite direction that has him writhing in the old Gary Cooper foot twisting, head swiveling spasms of bashfulness.

Maybe you would like to know how "Wildflower" got from Italy and Spain to Texas, and I'm not quite sure, except that the Shuberts took it there. But they couldn't quite find it in their hearts to desert the original entirely, so the Texas spitfire who has to control her temper to inherit grandpa's fortune makes her entrance in musical comedy cowgirl attire, riding in the "Pagliacci" donkey cart, surrounded by natives attired for the Samba.

By this you may gather, and you will be right, that what our operetta series needs is the opposite of Ado Annie, some one who can say no. No to this business of tossing everything in the warehouse on the stage in the mistaken notion that it looks lavish, no to tasteless jokes thrust in for a brief titter, no to dances that go on too long when the new chorus is not expert enough to keep them interesting.

Mr. Leavitt, billed as director, was ill and unable to play the leading comedy role, which Steve Mills took over without a hitch. Karen Conrad was lost again in a ballet which wistfully reached toward the Agnes de Mille pinnacle, but twirled briefly into her own in a Tudor characterization from "Gala Performance," the rival ballerina bit which Komarova calmly thrust into some of the cancan flourishes from Massine's "Gaité Parisienne." Nanon Miller was one of the soloists, a lovely little dancer with a springlike quality to perk up any stage.

Lovely Dress

Kimono shoulders give this dress cap sleeves. Its neckline is heart shaped, its bodice molded. Below the low waistline is deft fullness. Both prints and plain colors make up well, as do crepe, cotton and sheers. Style No. 2775 is designed for sizes 12 to 46. Size 36 requires 2⅞ yards of 35 or 39 inch fabric.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Hanover, N. H.

This is New England, serviced by Boston & Maine, the railroad with a high whistled engine named Lily Pons; the part of the country where two states meet at a station marked Charlestown, N. H., & Springfield, Vt.; where Brattleboro still recalls the visit of Hetty Green during which she decided to buy controling interest in the Louisville & Nashville railroad and sold it 10 minutes after ownership at a profit of 8 million dollars. No small change business woman was Hetty.

This is Hanover, from which 8,200 sons of Dartmouth have gone into service, where five of the staff of the Daily Dartmouth went to England and enlisted, after which three of them were killed, two wounded; where the white frame house two doors from my lodging marks the lodging of Daniel Webster during his freshman year—Daniel Webster who pleaded before the United States Supreme court in 1818: "It is, sir, as I have said, a small college. And yet there are those who love it," voicing all loyalties of all generations.

This is Dartmouth, where the first dean was an Indian; where the first charter was granted before the Revolutionary war; where the students once wore top hats, and where now the casual slacks and sweaters are replaced on the college green by military uniforms.

Mary Smalley.

This is a man's town. But there are women here who have watched the students come and go like the leaves of spring drifting away in the autumn.

There is Mary Smalley.

She no longer is in business on College street where for so long she ran her famous eating club, begun in 1914 with 12 members, later enlarged to feed 150.

It's been a wonderful life, she says. The eating club provided her with a good living for a sick husband and two children. It gave her a close touch with youth. She says, "I loved every bit of it—the devilry, the fun, the good and the bad, the ups and downs—every bit of it!"

She lives quietly now, surrounded by gifts of the students: a beautiful silver platter from "The Charter Members of the Smalley Club," a silver bread tray, a lovely tip table, and a cake platter inscribed "To Mrs. Smalley from the Bankers." The bankers were a group who ate in the kitchen to save money and so named themselves because "they had the best of everything and paid the least."

She has a Deke pin, a Dragon pin, and a beer mug presented by her boys. She remembers them all, hundreds of them, never forgets a name, a face or a prank: Gene Markey and Dr. Syvertsen [now secretary of the medical school] and Bill Embree cake-walking before a tray of fried chicken at a dinner where she catered. She remembers affectionately her "managers" who took charge of the business. She saw them all, gay, lonesome, homesick, in trouble. She sent a rider on horseback into the snow covered hills to an outing club cabin to reach a student whose mother was dying; she bought railroad tickets, lent money "and never lost a penny"; she interceded for the miscreants with the president of the college; she rescued some boys from drowning. She remembers them all.

She calls long distance now for word of the boys in the invasion, "other mothers' sons, but sons of Dartmouth." I cannot tell you how I feel," she says simply. As she waits for news only one thing sustains her. It was Mary Smalley who put up the flags when college opened after the last war. Some day, some day, the flags will go up again.

The bidding:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 heart | Double | Pass | 1 spade |
| 2 hearts | 2 spades | 3 hearts | Pass |
| 4 hearts | Double [final bid] | | |

West opened the spade king. Declarer ruffed and took the heart finesse—incidentally, the only one he should have taken in the entire play. West covered the heart queen, the ace won, the heart jack was cashed, and declarer now entered dummy with a club to try the diamond finesse. West smothered the queen, cashed the high heart, and exited with a high spade. Declarer ruffed and led the ace and another diamond. East won and returned a club. Again declarer finessed [he might as well at this stage], and when West captured the jack, the contract was down one.

The high cards were absolutely marked in West's hand, hence declarer's diamond finesse was bad play. He should have forced West in with the high heart, and then discarded a diamond on West's best return of a high spade. Now West would be on the spot. If he led a third high spade declarer would ruff, lead to the club king, discard another diamond on the established spade, then throw West back on lead by cashing the club ace and leading the club jack. The diamond suit would have to be started by West, who would have to lead up to the major tenace.

BYRON NELSON, McSPADEN WIN VALLEY TITLE

Average 63.8 for 7 Best Ball Rounds.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 9 (AP).—Byron Nelson and Jug McSpaden, never behind in team scoring in 126 holes of play, today won the Golden Valley golf championship with a three point margin over the second place twosome of Bill Kaiser and Bob Hamilton.

Nelson and McSpaden teamed to win the four-ball match play crown with a best ball scoring average of 63.8 for the seven round marathon, the season's longest tournament.

They totaled a remarkable 447, 64 strokes under the course's 37-36—73 par—with consecutive rounds of 61, 65, 66, 63, 63, 66, 63.

Lose One Match.

They lost only one match in the eight team round robin meet. That was on today's final round when Harry Cooper and Ellsworth Vines took a one-up victory when Vines dropped a 20-foot birdie putt on the last green. Both teams posted best ball scores of 63.

Byron Nelson. Jug McSpaden.

Nelson and McSpaden finished with a plus 13 count in the scoring while Kaiser and Hamilton, gaining a point on the last 18 holes, had a

Split $1,600 Prize.

Kaiser and Hamilton, holding second place thruout the meet, finished with a score of 68 on the final round to average 65.7 strokes for the seven rounds. They beat Lt. Ben Hogan and Toney Penna, one-up, this afternoon.

Nelson and McSpaden split a war bond first prize of $1,600 while Kaiser and Hamilton divided $1,200.

VIKINGS DEFEAT SCHWABENS, 6-4, IN SOCCER FINAL

Closing the Chicago soccer season yesterday, the Vikings defeated the Schwabens, 6 to 4, in Hanson park stadium to win the championship of the International league, major division.

Led by Jimmy McDermott, the Vikings walked off to a 4 to 1 lead at half time and protected their advantage thru the final half, altho the Schwabens rallied to a point of making the game more even.

McDermott, with four goals, was the leading soccer of the day. Ernie Kuhel of the Vikings and Vic Absil of the Schwabens each accounted for two goals.

In other soccer matches played yesterday, also in Hanson park stadium, Ogden park defeated the Sam Redas, 1 to 0, and Necaxa beat the Hansas, 7 to 1.

Entries Open for Tribune's Swim Meet

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Individual entries for the 15th annual 100 yard free style swimming races sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., may be made at any time in the next two weeks on the blank provided in these pages. However, all boys and girls who wish to compete in the four sectional trials July 22 and 23 are urged to file their entries as soon as possible.

Promptness in entering will assist the clerks who compile the lists. Team entries may be mailed in a group by the coach or captain. Entries will not be accepted unless postmarked before midnight July 17.

Five Age Classes.

It is most important that the address of each contestant be furnished with the entry. Team entries must be divided according to the five age classes. Each contestant will receive a postcard accepting the entry and this card will admit to the pool without charge. These cards will be mailed two or three days before the trials July 22.

Sectional trials will be held at Cermak pool, 7600 Ogden av., Lyons, Ill., and at Sherman park, 52d st. and Racine av., on July 22. On the following afternoon, preliminaries will be held at Wheaton pool, Milwaukee and Devon avs., and California park, 3901 N. California av.

10 Championship Races.

The number of qualifiers for the 10 championship races July 30 at California park from each of the four preliminary centers will be in ratio to the number of entries at each. Approximately 120 boys and girls will qualify for the finals.

The age classes are class A, 11 and 12 years; class B, 13 and 14; class C, 15 and 16; class D, 17 and 18, and class E, 19 years of age and over. Each contestant who reports for his 100 yard test will receive a souvenir badge and ribbon badges also will be awarded the winners of all preliminary races.

Foreman Tops Cochran, 1 Up, in Golf Final

Peoria, Ill., July 9 [Special].—Harold Foreman of Chicago scored a birdie four on the 36th and last hole to defeat Bob Cochran of Edwardsville, 1 up, in the finals and win the Illinois state amateur golf championship here today. Cochran missed a seven foot putt for a halve on the 36th green.

Cochran came from behind to carry the championship battle to the final green. After 14 holes in the morning round he found himself four down, but managed to cut Foreman's lead to two holes at the end of 18.

All Even After 27 Holes.

It took him nine more holes to whittle down Foreman's advantage, and at the end of 27 holes the two were all even. Cochran took the 28th to go one up, but Foreman bounced back with a deuce on 29 and the match was all knotted again.

It remained that way until the 33d when Foreman again eased into the lead. Cochran birdied the 165 yard 35th with a deuce as Foreman parred it, and the pair were all even as they drove to the final green. Foreman's birdie on the 495 yard hole decided the championship.

Plays Last Nine in 33.

Foreman, after a rather shaky outgoing nine in the afternoon, settled down and played the last nine in 33, three under par. He played the morning 18 holes in 71, one under par, as compared to Cochran's 73.

Today's was Foreman's first state championship victory. He was runnerup to Mike Stolarik, now in the navy, last year.

SEGURA DEFEATS TALBERT TO WIN TENNIS CROWN

Neenah, Wis., July 9 (AP).—Francisco [Pancho] Segura of the University of Miami, and Pauline Betz of Los Angeles today won western senior tennis championships.

Segura won a gruelling three hour match from Bill Talbert, Indianapolis, 3-6, 6-1, 4-6, 6-3, 11-9, while Miss Betz defeated Dorothy Mae Bundy, Santa Monica, Cal., 6-1, 6-2.

Miss Bundy and Mary Arnold, Wilmington, Del., beat Miss Betz and Marilyn McCrory, Milwaukee, 6-3, 6-3, to win the women's doubles title and Miss Arnold and Nick Buzolich, Los Angeles, won the mixed doubles crown, beating Miss Bundy and Talbert, 7-5, 2-6, 6-1.

Whether colossal or microscopic.

He could reel off the date Maine became a state
Or when Caesar the Rubicon crossed,
He could give you the score of games long past and o'er,

BOB CHIPMAN, PASSEAU WIN BEFORE 38,434

Claude Fans Nine in Three Hit Game.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs broke out of the National league cellar yesterday for the third time in a week and now are contemplating making a bid for a classy first division apartment. They broke the lock on the basement door by whaling the Giants, 6 to 2, in the first half of a double header and then fixed themselves more comfortably in seventh place by following thru with a 1 to 0 Claude Passeau classic before a Wrigley field turnout of 38,434.

The first game saw Bob Chipman, the southpaw refugee from the doddering Dodgers attain his fourth straight and his fifth success as a Cub. The technique in this affair was simple. Chipman, after surrendering three hits good for a run in the second inning, yielded only four more the rest of the way, most of which he traveled along Easy st. because of a five run blast his pals had turned loose against Andy Hansen in the third.

Passeau Strikes Out Nine.

The Passeau act in the second game was slowed down by only three hits, the Mississippi farmer meanwhile concentrating on his strike out pitch. He slipped this treatment to the enemy on nine occasions, three being reserved for Manager Mel Ott who at times this season has been quite a nuisance. However, even with the strikeouts and scarcity of hits, Passeau was not without troubles. He got himself into mild jams by issuing four passes but his fellow workers didn't appreciate his generosity, so they pulled him out three times with double plays.

The run that won for Passeau was the outcome of three hits bunched in the seventh after two were out against Bill Voiselle who was sparring for his 12th victory. This little but effective revolt against the Giant right hander was launched by Phil Cavarretta's single in the seventh and Bill Nicholson promptly joined in the movement by singling. Dom Dallessandro was quite a problem for the Giants in the first battle so he was walked, filling the bases, after which Andy Pafko beat out a hit to Bill Jurges, Cavarretta scoring.

Cubs Score Five in Third.

The first item in the Cubs' decisive third inning parade in the first game was a pass to Chipman, followed by a double to right from Stan Hack's bat. Nothing happened while Roy Hughes was being thrown out but Cavarretta provided a fly ball on which Chipman scored the tying run. Nicholson, after walking, was trapped off first base but Gus Mancuso obliged with a wild throw, Hack scoring. Nicholson hiked home on Dallessandro's single, and Dallessandro, along with Pafko who had walked, scored on Don Johnson's double. The Cubs' only other run resulted from a two bagger by Dallessandro off Rube Fischer in the fifth.

A delegation from southeastern Chicagoland arrived at home plate between games and handed its neighborhood hero, Billy Holm, a handbag containing a $1,000 war bond. . . . Some of the Cubs will spend part of their All-Star game vacation in an exhibition tonight at South Bend, Ind. . . . ## MAJOR LEAGUES PLAN MEETING ON LANDIS PACT

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 9 (AP).—The baseball clans will gather at Forbes field Tuesday night for the 12th major league All-Star game but before the men of Managers Billy Southworth and Joe McCarthy tee off the club owners will attempt to solve a few knotty problems involving the future of the game.

In order of importance is the intention of the American league, headed by President Will Harridge, to bring up the matter of the pact under which Kenesaw Mountain Landis has ruled as high commissioner of baseball since 1921. The agreement, which expires in 1946, gives the commissioner wide powers and Landis never has been backward in exercising them, especially in regard to the covering up of ball players on farm clubs.

Seek More Night Games.

On the other hand Ford Frick's National league sees no particular reason for bringing up the subject so long as Landis is in power. Nobody knows just where the 77 year old commissioner stands.

Also high on the agenda of the leagues' separate meetings tomorrow and their joint session Tuesday morning is the extension of night games. The St. Louis Browns and Cards, pace setters in the two leagues, and the Chicago White Sox especially are desirous of more arc light contests.

The all-star game, which is slated to attract a capacity crowd of close to 40,000 with receipts going to baseball's service equipment fund, will find the American leaguers battling for their ninth victory and their fourth straight.

Star Pitchers Available.

Both managers said they would not name their starting lineups until tomorrow but McCarthy, heading the junior circuit squad for the seventh time, is expected to send to the pitching mound his own Yankee ace, Hank Borowy, who has an 11-4 record or Tex Hughson, Red Sox star who has compiled a mark of 13 victories as against only three defeats. Both are right handers. If he decides to send out a lefty it'll probably be Hal Newhouser of the Tigers with a 13-5 record.

Southworth has at his beck and call such top National league hurlers as Bucky Walters of Cincinnati [14-3], a right hander, and Rip Sewell, the Pirate blooper ball right hander who has won 10 and lost six.

DIETRICH WHIPS A'S, 4-3; GROVE DEFEATED, 8-2

Lee's Pitching Arm Broken by Drive.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., July 9.—The White Sox, who came east a while back in second place, ended their somewhat dismal seaboard shufflings today by splitting a double header with the Athletics, taking the first game with oodles of luck, 4 to 3, and being badly lacerated in the second, 8 to 2.

To make it worse, Thornton [Lefty] Lee, whose luck has been all bad this year, suffered a broken left arm on the last play of the second game. The arm was hit by a line drive off Roberto Estalella's bat. Lee picked up the ball and threw out Estalella. X-rays were taken tonight at Graduate hospital where it was said he probably would pitch no more this season. Lee's 1944 record was one victory and nine defeats, four of the latter coming when the Sox were shut out. Lee had relieved Orval Grove, the starting pitcher.

Dietrich Forced to Retire.

The Chicagoans won four of their 14 games during their second 1944 sequence of eastern ordeals, but only one in which opponents' errors were not essential to success.

Bill Dietrich—and it was Dietrich day in Shibe park with 17,288 neighbors in attendance—was the winning pitcher in the first game, the he retired with a sore shin after six innings of four hit pitching. Gordon Maltzberger, who finished, was saved from probable defeat when the A's stole the favorite Sox boner play, failure to touch up at third, to end the game in a ridiculous but highly welcome double play.

The second game saw Grove in something of an encore of his appearance in Yankee stadium a week ago. On that occasion Orval lasted three and two-thirds innings, in which he pitched two homers, a triple, and three singles. The two doubles and homer were hit successively just before Orval went away to pack for his trip to the All-Star game to be played in Pittsburgh Tuesday night.

Tucker Slumps to .327.

The other Sox All-Star, Thurman Tucker, found a shred of comfort in the second game. He singled in the second inning to end his hitless streak after 23 successive failures. The former American league batting leader left Yankee stadium a week ago tonight with a batting average of .375. Tonight his mark is .327.

In the first game the first two Sox runs got home on errors. Ralph Hodgins doubled back of third in the second inning and scored on Jo-Jo White's failure to hold Tom Turner's line drive. In the third inning Eddie Carnett singled, went to third on Hodgin's single and scored when Eddie Busch failed to pick up Tucker's grounder.

The A's scored in the third on a pass to Luke Hamlin and successive singles by Ford Garrison and Estalella. Turner led off the fourth with a double to left center and scored on Skeeter Webb's single.

Line Drive Hits Dietrich.

Hamlin, first up in the fifth, cracked Dietrich on the shin with a line drive. Bill hung on to retire the side in order in the fifth and sixth innings, then gave way to Maltzberger.

White, Busch, and Pinch Batter Woody Wheaton, first three up in the ninth singled, producing a run, putting Busch on third, and Wheaton on first. Irv Hall flied to Guy Curtright, the runners holding their bases. Then Garrison lined a long fly to Curtright on which Busch could have trotted home with the tying run had he touched up at third. The rookie shortstop, however, broke for home and was doubled, Curtright to Hodgin.

Hall opened the A's offense in the first inning of the second game with a triple and scored on Garrison's fly. Bill McGhee opened the second inning with a single, stole second, took third on an out and scored on an infield single by Busch.

Castino Nailed at Plate.

In the fifth inning, Curtright and Vince Castino singled and advanced on Webb's fly. Grove was called out on strikes but Moses singled to left. Curtright scored but Castino was out at the plate.

Grove really wilted in the fifth. With one down Garrison and Estalella knocked successive doubles, and Frankie Hayes drove his tenth homer into the left field stand.

Carnett's sixth inning triple and an infield out gave the Sox their second run.

Lee, after retiring the first man in the seventh, walked three in a row. All got home on a passed ball and a single.

The Sox will play at Fort Dix, N. J., tomorrow.

Anderson's Big Bear Line Is All-Star Grief

[This is the second of a series on the three coaches of the Chicago Bears, who will meet the Chicago All-Stars on the night of Aug. 30 in Evanston.]

BY EDWARD PRELL.

They called him Rockers when he was the toughest guard Notre Dame ever had. One look at his feet and you had the answer. They were so flat in the middle they turned up fore and aft. His creed as a player was to rock 'em and sock 'em. This spirit burns no less fiercely now that Heartly [Hunk] Anderson is a coach.

Hunk Anderson.

For four seasons the big, powerful men in the Bears' line have been obeying his hoarse commands. Football always has been war to the red-faced fellow who looks and acts like an army sergeant. There is nothing spurious about this resemblance. Anderson, scarcely out of his teens, was a sergeant in the last conflict.

Bear Line Meets Test.

The College All-Stars, on the night of Aug. 30, in Dyche stadium will come up against husky professional forwards who have been taught in the Anderson manner. He showed his coaching skill last year, when, with such giants gone as Joe Stydahar, Ed Kolman, Lee Artoe, and Ed [Muscles] Bray, his Bear line withstood the onslaughts of teams admittedly superior in manpower.

We think that Anderson is one of sport's most misunderstood men. There's an impression among some who do not know him that he is on the uncouth side. But he appreciates the finer things. He has a beautiful home in a Detroit suburb and the nicest family you'd want to meet.

More to Be Taught.

"There is five times as much to teach the lineman of today as in the old days," he says. "In the 20s, for instance, the whole offensive would revolve around being used against a seven man defensive line. Now you have to prepare plays to work against all the weird defenses imaginable.

"The change in the passing rule which eliminated the 5 yard penalty if two successive passes in a series of downs failed really brought on the six man line. This opened up football and led to the five man line.

Mouse Trap Develops.

Then, narrated Hunk, line play underwent another metamorphosis. The new strategy was a six-man line, all of the lads rooting in there to bust up running or passing plays. This caused such consternation to the offensive team that the mouse trap was born.

Mouse trapping first was noted by Hunk in the 20s when the late Judge Walter Steffen's Carnegie Tech team played Notre Dame. The defensive back was allowed to sift thru the line, then was banged from the side just as he was about to tackle the ball carrier. For the first few years only the backs were mouse trapped. Then it spread to the linemen.

"But here," said Hunk, acting startled. "Maybe I'm giving away too many secrets. After all, we can't afford to spot those collegians anything."

YANK FIGHTS ON WITH PART OF A SHELL ON HEART

Cut 3 In. Into Chest to Remove Object.

Washington, D. C., July 9 (AP).—This is the story of an American doughboy who fought thru months of the African campaign with an undetected shell fragment lodged upon his heart.

A war department report to the division of surgery of the army surgeon general's office told how the shell fragment finally was removed seven months after the soldier had suffered his original battle wound.

To remove the fragment—a piece of steel about a half inch in length—surgeons had to probe down, layer by layer, three inches into the man's chest.

Rejoins His Unit.

The soldier, who was unidentified in the report, was wounded in the chest in a battle in North Africa during March, 1943. His wound healed rapidly and he rejoined his combat unit 26 days later.

Several times in the next few months he suffered recurrent pain in the region of the heart, but he kept on fighting. Later, he was placed on light duty, but the pains persisted periodically and finally he was referred to a general hospital.

Doctors found that his only visible sign of injury was the small half inch scar on his chest, but X-ray examination revealed a small, metallic foreign body near the base of the heart's auricle.

Signs that progressive damage was occurring were revealed by the electrocardiograph, an instrument that measures the electrical impulses created in the heart muscles.

Resting on Heart.

So the surgeons operated, and found the fragment resting right upon the heart, encased in a tiny capsule that had grown around it. Six weeks later, the man was discharged from the hospital.

Such operations are not without precedent, but there have been very few in this war.

A sailor wounded at Pearl Harbor had a shell fragment removed from the wall of his heart.

Sometimes bullets that get into the cavities of the heart are borne out again in the blood stream. One such bullet was later removed from a man's thigh to which it had migrated from the heart.

PULLMAN, INC., DECIDES NOT TO APPEAL ORDER

Indicates It Plans for Separation.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

A Philadelphia federal court decision in the Pullman, Inc., anti-trust case ordering the company to divorce its car servicing and car manufacturing operations will not be appealed to the United States court, stockholders will be told today in a letter from D. A. Crawford, president. The 331 million dollar company indicated instead it is preparing a separation plan.

Crawford explained that the decision was taken in belief the Supreme court might not give Pullman freedom of choice in retaining either the sleeping car or the car manufacturing business.

Has Ninety Days to Decide.

The court order was effective last Friday. Pullman, Inc., has 90 days from then to decide what it will do and to submit to the court for hearings and approval a separation plan. Its car servicing is operated by Pullman company and the manufacturing business by Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company.

"It should be recalled that the District court refused to accede to the demand of the department of justice that Pullman, Inc., be denied freedom of choice and the exercise of its business judgment in execting the separation ordered by the decree, of the two major lines of business conducted by the Pullman group of companies," Crawford said. "This court recognized that Pullman should have the right to elect whether it would dispose of its manufacturing or its sleeping car business.

Would Hamper Action.

"Stockholders will readily understand the difficulties which would be faced in seeking to protect their investments if the management were to be restricted in the manner desired by the government and deprived of flexibility and choice of action in conducting negotiations for disposition of the property and other assets of one or the other of the going businesses now conducted by the subsidiaries."

Besides jeopardizing the Pullman position under the court decree, Crawford said an appeal would create a long period of legal uncertainty, leaving railroad users of sleeping car service and railroad buyers of Pullman-Standard equipment hampered in their dealings with the Pullman group of companies. He said the uncertainty also would be of real concern to thousands of Pullman employes.

The Philadelphia court ordered separation of the company's business in a decision in April, 1943, and a three judge United States District court on Jan. 22 this year refused to modify the opinion.

The government filed anti-trust actions against Pullman, Inc., under both the Sherman and Clayton acts. Altho the company's home office is Chicago, the government forced it to stand trial in Philadelphia.

Money Parley Ignores Real Peace Issues, British Assert

LONDON, July 9 [Special].—British comment on the allied nations monetary and financial conference at Bretton Woods, N. H., indicates a widespread belief here that the conference and its critics are debating everything but the real issues posed by the fast moving war and the coming peace.

These issues, it is asserted here, are less financial than economic, less a matter of planning for long-term monetary stability than of making order out of chaos during the transition period.

The question whether reconstruction is to be achieved by private enterprise, which is so vital to American critics, is dismissed here even in highly conservative quarters as of secondary import.

Governments to Decide.

For instance, the Observer today said: "Few countries in Europe will be prepared to leave reconstruction entirely in the hands of competitive private enterprise. Governments will decide what industries are to be rebuilt; what new industries are to be started."

It criticized the statement of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau that it would be impossible for one or even two or three countries to deal with the problems of international exchange and investment.

It asserted that many problems of international exchange and investment could be solved bilaterally or within a regional framework and said the great question hanging over the conference is whether transactions between pairs or groups of like minded nations are to be ruled out by the proposed monetary agreement. For Britain and large parts of Europe it is asserted to be essential that they have freedom to act and plan together.

Transition Needs Neglected.

The Times regretted that the joint statement of the monetary experts which forms the basis for the conference, like the charter of the united nations' relief and rehabilitation administration, largely neglected transitional needs.

It said that as the allied forces move swiftly across Europe "problems such as unemployment will no longer seem as irrelevant as they apparently seemed to the UNRRA delegates at Atlantic City." They may have to be faced soon if the Germans are quickly expelled from northern Italy.

Who and How Many in Fund Rule Debated

Bretton Woods, N. H., July 9 (AP).—The makeup of the executive management committee of the projected world monetary fund has been the subject of sharp debate at the international monetary conference, it was disclosed today. Altho the committees took the day off, a conference spokesman said discussions were continuing on how many members should constitute the fund's executive committee and how they should be elected.

It has been agreed that each country represented in the fund will have one member on the board of governors which in turn will name an executive group to manage the fund's day-to-day operations. A proposal that appears to have strong backing is one providing for the election of an 11 man executive committee. Five would be named automatically by the countries having the five largest quotas.

Six Places Left to Others.

The other six places would be determined by a system of proportionate voting among the remaining nations which would result in the naming of one representative for each 16 per cent of the total votes of those countries. No nation would vote for more than one man, and the votes, based on the quota strength of each country, would be apportioned among the six highest candidates, with the result one man would represent perhaps a half dozen nations, another candidate six or eight nations and so on.

The chief objection to this system has been raised by the Latin American countries who contend their standing in the post-war world will be of such importance they are entitled as a group to at least two seats on the executive committee, regardless of their quotas.

Geographical Plan Opposed.

Another proposal has been advanced which would have the executive committee fixed at 15, giving more representation to the smaller countries. Still another places the number at nine on the ground that the smaller the group the more effective its operation.

There also was some discussion on an amendment providing for the naming of the committee on strictly geographical lines, but this was generally opposed with the contention that the nations should be represented according to their economic rather than geographic interests.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

F. E. MYERS & BROTHER.

I would appreciate a review of F. E. Myers & Brother company. How are its post-war prospects regarded? K. R.

Answer: The company is a leading manufacturer of pumps, ranging from hand units to power apparatus of large capacity. Other products are electric water systems for household and industrial use, fruit and row crop sprayers, hay tools, and other farm equipment. Pumps normally account for more than three-quarters of sales.

Altho the business has been mainly in agricultural regions, a growing industrial market provides some diversification of demand. Besides supplying regular products for military, and to some extent civilian, uses, Myers is engaged in other war production. Accumulated demands from regular customers will possibly provide favorable operation conditions after the war, and the increased farm purchasing power is considered a promising factor. The possibility of increased competition in Myers' field, however, is also to be considered.

The company's earnings since Pearl Harbor have been below the average of $4.78 a share shown for the six fiscal years ended Oct. 31, 1941. Per share profits were: 1943, $2.85; 1942, $2.96; 1941, $5.45; 1940, $4.86; 1939, $4.00; 1938, $4.11; 1937, $5.32; 1936, $4.94. For the six months ended April 30, 1944, net income equaled $1.70 a share after a reserve for renegotiation.

Common dividends have been paid each year since 1928. During the first half of 1944, payments amounted to $1.50 a share. Two dollars was paid in 1943 and 1942, and $4.75 in 1941. Capitalization consists solely of 200,000 no par shares. Current assets as of Oct. 31, 1943, totaled $5,146,811 and current liabilities $990,191.

May Retail Sales Topped Only 4 Times in History

Washington, D. C., July 9 (AP).—Sales of retail stores in May were estimated by the commerce department today at 5 billion 728 million dollars, an increase of 10 per cent over May, 1943. The department said this figure had been exceeded only in the December peaks of the last three years and in October, 1943. For the first five months of 1944 sales were almost 9 per cent above the corresponding period of 1943.

U. S. SALES TAX URGED TO SLICE INCOME LEVIES

Held Way to Impel Venture Capital.

A federal post-war tax plan calling for a national 5 per cent retail sales tax, reduced income levies on individuals, a new method of taxing dividends and other changes was suggested yesterday by a group of Minneapolis and St. Paul industrialists, financiers, business and professional men organized as the Twin Cities Research bureau. Carl P. Herbert is secretary of the organization.

Carl P. Herbert.

The proposal, published as the "Twin Cities Plan for Post-War Taxation," also recommended repeal of the excess profits, capital stock, and declared value excess profits taxes; retention of current withholding tax payment provisions, and prohibition of any retroactive tax measures.

Venture Capital Barred.

Holding that the country's "depression born, defeatist concept of government's role in business" must be revised, the group shaped its plan to conform with the principle that "relatively heavy corporate income tax rates are not so harmful to the private interprise system as are heavy individual income tax rates because the latter shut off at the source all possibility of venture capital from individuals."

Among the plan's sponsors are James F. Bell, chairman, General Mills; William L. McKnight, president, Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing company; Daniel F. Bull, president, Cream of Wheat corporation; John Crosby, director, General Mills; Shirley S. Ford, president, Northwestern National Bank of Minneapolis, and Willard L. Huff, vice president, Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator company.

The sales tax contemplated provides for no exemptions whatsoever and possible yield was estimated at 2 billion 800 million dollars a year. Much of this sum, the group said, would come from the two-thirds of national income which now entirely escapes federal income taxes.

Would Cut Individual Levies.

The sponsors said they realized "formidable opposition" to such a levy existed, but said that in addition to tapping untouched revenue sources, it would furnish a tax difficult to evade and reduce federal income taxes on individuals.

With a sales levy in the statutes, imposition of much more gradual surtax rates would be possible, backers of the plan said. They suggested a 10 per cent normal tax, $600 exemption for single persons, $1,400 for married persons, $400 for each dependent, exemption of the first $2,000 from the surtax, and surtax rates ranging from 6 per cent between $2,000 and $4,000 to 50 per cent on income over $300,000.

The group's estimates are based on a projected national income of 120 billion dollars, an annual tax bill, including federal, state, and local government, of 27 billion, and a national debt of 300 billion. Interest charges on the debt were estimated at 6 billion.

That 40 per cent of dividends received by stockholders from domestic corporations be excluded from gross income and that the individual then pay the tax called for in his own bracket on the 60 per cent reported is proposed.

Altho the business leaders recommended repeal of excess profits taxes, they suggested retention of the corporate income tax rates, ranging up to 40 per cent.

Airport Chiefs Study Chicago as New Home

Aviation industry representatives from all sections of the country will attend the 16th annual convention of the American Association of Airport Executives which opens today in the Hotel Sherman. Present and post-war problems of the industry will be discussed during the three day conference.

George P. Moore, executive secretary of the association, disclosed yesterday that the organization is considering establishing its national headquarters in Chicago.

Sees City as Air Center.

He said Chicago is a logical location for the nation's aviation center because of its central position, the war time development of aviation industries here, and the potential development of the city's airport facilities.

Moore added that the convention probably will designate Chicago as the permanent site for its annual convention. Forum discussions at the convention will be opened to any one in aviation who wishes to attend. A board of nonmembers and members has been appointed to direct the discussions, and the convention speakers will address the forum.

Banquet Tomorrow Night.

The closed convention program has been limited to one members' business session tonight and the annual association banquet tomorrow evening.

Convention speakers will include Col. Roscoe Turner of Indianapolis, Ind., and Dr. John H. Frederick of Austin, Tex., professor of transportation at the University of Texas.

FOUR FACE TRIAL TODAY IN KILLING OF SONNY QUIRK

Egan, Ex-Defendant, Will Testify for State.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Four men who chose their own time to surrender to the authorities on a charge of murder they expected would result in a few court apearances and then a dismissal are to face real and vigorous prosecution this morning, First Assistant State's Atty. Wilbert F. Crowley announced yesterday.

The defendants, who are accused of the ambush murder last Sept. 18 of Martin [Sonny Boy] Quirk, the killer who shot his way to leadership in the Capone-Guzik gambling syndicate, are to be tried before Judge Harold G. Ward in the Criminal court.

Two Employed by Williams.

They are: James Fawcett, alias Red Forsythe, long a gunman and terrorist on the south side; Robert Bock, brother-in-law of Public Enemy Danny Stanton, who was killed by Quirk; Ray Deskovitz, employed in John Williams' gambling house at 63d st. and Kedzie av.; and Jerome De Jonckheere, a dice dealer for Williams.

The four were named in an indictment that originally included the names of James Egan, who is now to testify against them; Williams, said to have financed the Quirk murder; Anthony De Lordo, and John Enright. De Lordo and Enright were Williams' employes.

Last winter Williams, De Lordo, and Enright were found not guilty by a jury which had heard a complete story of the Quirk murder from Egan on the witness stand. It was admitted that Egan was to receive immunity for his testimony and, for that reason, it was said afterward, the jury may not have believed him.

Egan Vanishes When Freed.

Anyway, Egan, was given his freedom in due time. The indictment against him was nolle prossed and he went away.

One by one the four surrendered and demanded trial. The state pleaded for time on the ground that Egan could not be located and Egan's testimony was vital to the prosecution. Without Egan there would be no trial. The time had almost arrived when the state would be compelled to dismiss the charge against the four—and then Egan returned.

Egan's story was that Fawcett convinced Williams that Quirk should be murdered. He said Williams agreed to help Fawcett get rid of Quirk and turned his employes over to Fawcett to assist in doing the deed.

The Inquiring Camera Girl
BY MARYON ZYLSTRA

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Clara Strand, 504 Orleans st., St. Paul, Minn.]

THE QUESTION.

What helpful hint would you recommend for saving money?

WHERE ASKED.

120 S. La Salle St. Building.

THE ANSWERS.

Fred M. Johnson, salesman, 6633 Le Roy av., Lincolnwood—I think the best way any one can save money is to acquire an obligation of some kind—buy something that requires you to make monthly payments: such as a piece of property. You'll always try to pay, because, if you don't, you'll lose what you've put in.

W. F. Roberts, broker, 1225 Greenleaf av.—I think every one should take pride in building up a substantial savings account. Such an account stimulates a desire to get ahead, and gives you a comfortable feeling that you are able to provide for contingent events that arise. War bonds or government bonds are always good.

Kay Malastic, pay roll clerk, 6112 S. Winchester av.—I belong to a credit union—every pay day a certain percentage of my salary is deducted and put aside for me. Whenever I want to get it out I can. I don't miss it as much as if I were to get the full amount and then try to put a certain percentage away myself.

R. O. Bates, railroad tax department, 2014 Pratt ct., Evanston.—The hardest part about saving money, I think, is trying to hang on to it once you have it. Usually when people get a sizable amount of money they go on a spending spree. The way really to save is to invest your money in a sound location and forget about it.

Herman Kroll Jr., accounting statistician, 5043 Eddy st.—When I was a child, my folks told me to put away a certain percentage of my money. When I had an allowance of only 10 cents, I saved 2 cents each week. I'm convinced that the only way to save is to do it consistently, no matter what your earnings are.

WAR LOAN PLEA TO INDIVIDUALS BOLSTERS SALES

Chicago and Cook county's fifth war loan drive continued to forge steadily ahead yesterday, bolstered by a plea for new efforts in individual sales by Philip R. Clarke, general chairman of the campaign. The trades and industries and the house to house canvass groups are the main factors in the individual sales drive that will continue thru July 31.

In batting averages reported by Chairman Clarke two sections of the trades and industries division were over the top while 10 others chalked up the 70 per cent mark or more. The two groups passing their quotas are accountants and coal and ice with ratings of 108.5 and 104.2 per cent, respectively.

Amusements Make Sharp Gain.

The 10 groups next in line and their standings are mail order, 90.7; finance companies, 84.9; petroleum, 80.5; dairy and poultry, 75.9; amusements, 75.3; heating and plumbing, 74; steel and iron, 73.7; auto and auto parts manufacturing, 72.2; meat packing, 71.5; music, 70.5.

Clarke said the amusements group made the sharpest gain of the week, moving from 48th to seventh place. The petroleum group went from 31st to fifth place.

A bond rally parade will march down State st. tonight sponsored by the State st. council and the Medinah Temple of the Shrine. With oriental pageantry staged by the Shriners, the parade will form at 7:30 p. m. at Wacker dr., moving south in State st. to Congress st. and thence back in State st. to Madison st.

700 Shriners to Parade.

More than 700 Shriners will participate in the parade, which will be headed by Gov. Green and Mayor Kelly. The rally will be held at Madison and State sts. where a program will be staged at 8:45 p. m.

Speakers besides the governor and the mayor will include Chairman Clarke, Elmer T. Stevens, and Medinah Potentate Fred B. Swanson.

The program will be broadcast over W-G-N from 9:15 to 9:30 p. m. Mass singing of patriotic songs will be led by the Medinah chanters under direction of Harry Walsh. Drill formations will be presented by the Medinah patrol in its first public appearance as a uniformed unit since the attack on Pearl Harbor.

TRIBUNE'S WAR PRODUCTS SHOW ENDS 30 DAY RUN

THE TRIBUNE'S War Products exhibit closed last night after a 30 day run during which thousands of persons viewed the display of major war implements and secondary products and supplies.

Sponsored by the United States treasury department in coöperation with THE TRIBUNE and the manufacturers, the exhibit gave impetus to the fifth war loan drive. Many visitors at Tribune Square purchased war bonds and stamps.

The show included a display by the Dodge-Chicago plant of the Chrysler corporation of one of the huge rotary motors used in America's new flying Super Fortresses.

ARREST FRIEND IN SHOOTING OF WOMAN AT CAMP

G. H. Millsap, 46, a war worker, was held by Willow Springs county highway police last night in connection with the shooting of Mildred Lahrman, with whom, police said, he had lived in a tourist cottage at Roosevelt and Wolf rds., Hillside, for two years.

Miss Lahrman was taken to Berwyn hospital with bullet wounds in the arm and abdomen. Police said the shooting climaxed a drinking bout.

Police were called by William Malone, manager of the Shady Cottage Tavern and Trailer camp, who heard the shooting in the Millsap cottage.

Four Chicagoans Flee Boys' Training School

Four Negro inmates of the Illinois State Training School for Boys escaped early yesterday. They are Ernest Redrig, 16, of 1412 Roosevelt rd.; Harold Johnson, 16, of 5238 Michigan av.; Robert Fowler, 16, of 5518 Lafayette av., and Louis Brumfield, 18, of 542 E. 46th st.

Preview Tonight

Brig. Gen. John F. Davis, chief of staff of the 6th service command, will open officially the Weapons of War exhibit in Grant park at a preview at 8 o'clock this evening. He is the highest ranking army service forces officer in Chicago because of the absence of Maj. Gen. H. S. Aurand, commanding general of the 6th service command, on military duties. The exhibit has been brought to the city in coöperation with the treasury department to stimulate bond sales in the fifth war loan drive.

Gen. Davis will cut the ribbon at the entrance to the exhibit in the presence of high ranking officers and civilian guests, including Gov. Green and Mayor Kelly. The official party will be welcomed by Lt. Col. Sidney Z. Eleveld, exhibit director.

Purchasers of $500 in war bonds may attend the advance showing of the largest display of American and enemy battle equipment ever assembled. Beginning tomorrow and continuing thru July 24, the exhibit will be open free to the public daily from noon to 11 p. m.

FOREMEN UNION HOLDS RALLY IN CALUMET AREA

More than 200 foremen yesterday attended the first regional organizational rally in the Calumet area of the Foremen's Association of America to hear Robert H. Keys, national president, describe the aims and objects of the organization.

The meeting was held in the Roosevelt High school in East Chicago, Ind.

Keys predicted that within eight months the national labor relations board will recognize the right of foremen to organize where they are not represented by any other union.

REPORT CIRCUS FLAMES FED BY ROPES OF SISAL

Hartford, Conn., July 9 [Special]—Ropes of highly inflammable sisal hemp, in use because of the war time shortage of genuine hemp, were described here today as the wicks which carried the flames of death in Thursday's circus holocast.

A report by special Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey investigators, prepared independently of the official inquiry, said that sisal hemp, a product of Yucatan and as combustible as dry kindling, was employed for the lacing which held the six-sections big top together.

A Cigaret Is Blamed.

Flames raced along the shoestring fashion lacework of these seams to reach the center pole bail rings supporting the canvas, the report said. A cigaret tossed from a public rest room near the tent's main entrance was blamed in the report for touching off the blaze.

While this report was added to an accumulating mass of data regarding the fire, three additional deaths in hospitals brought the total of deaths to 157. Many funerals were held today in Hartford and near-by towns, and Mayor Henry Mortensen announced that dead remaining unidentified by 11 a. m. tomorrow will be given community burial.

Seven Are Unidentified.

They will be buried "with dignity and reverence" in individual graves at Northwood cemetery tomorrow afternoon, the mayor said, with Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish clergymen officiating. There were seven bodies still unidentified in the Hartford hospital morgue tonight.

Civil suits began to pile up against the circus company with an announcement that James A. Haley, executive vice president, will receive complete service tomorrow of seven suits asking $120,000 damages. Attachments impounding 79 circus railroad cars were served yesterday. More than 100 eyewitnesses have been subpenaed to testify at the coroner's inquest, which will open Tuesday.

15,000 VIKINGS AT ANNUAL FETE IN LAKE COUNTY

Fifteen thousand members of the Independent Order of Vikings celebrated their annual Viking day yesterday in Gurnee, Lake county. Speakers included Kjell G. Nordenskiold, attache of the Swedish general consulate in Chicago, and Harry Hall, state's attorney of Lake county. The Swedish Glee club of Waukegan and other singing groups were on the entertainment program. The general secretary of the order, which is a fraternal benefit society of persons of Swedish descent, is Erik Thulin, member of the Chicago board of education.

WATCH AND CASH STOLEN.

Thieves stole a watch valued at $150 and $15 from his automobile at 49th st. and the Outer drive, Erick Koller, 4426 S. Francisco av., told police yesterday.

Three Slashed

Harold Stanfield, Mrs. Hettie Poole (center), and Stanfield's wife, Doris.

Harold Stanfield, 24, yesterday slashed his wife, Doris, 28, her sister, Mrs. Hettie Poole, 19, and then cut his own throat with a safety razor blade in a quarrel in the Stanfield apartment at 4033 Drexel blvd. All were taken to Michael Reese hospital, where Stanfield and his wife were said to be in critical condition.

In the apartment police found a recording made by Stanfield which indicated that he had planned to commit suicide before the arrival earlier yesterday of his wife and her sister from Nashville, Tenn., where they were visiting. An envelop attached to the disc said: "This will explain my love for you."

Police Lt. John Ryan of the Hyde Park station played the record after leaving the apartment. On it, he said, Stanfield accused his wife of being unfaithful.

Stanfield, an employe of a war plant, came to Chicago from Tennessee a month ago, police said. Mrs. Stanfield later was removed to County hospital and Stanfield to the Bridewell hospital.

HIGH UNION FEE CURBS 3 WOMEN SIGN PAINTERS

The three young women sign painters, who ran into trouble with the Sign Painters' union, local 830, [AFL], when they were painting an outdoor sign on a garage at 940 N. Clark st., Friday, have decided to stick to the show card business and their nonunion status.

"We couldn't see where it would be profitable for each of us to pay the required $100 initial fee plus the $4.50 per month dues so we decided not to join the union and to limit our work to indoor jobs," Miss Nan Rogers, 414½ Arlington pl., said in speaking for the other two.

Miss Rogers and Alice Lewis, of 1325 N. Dearborn st., are partners in the venture and Miss Evelyn Thebus is an employe.

SEMINAR OPENS FOR PHYSICIANS ON WEDNESDAY

More than 150 physicians and surgeons are expected to attend a war seminar on industrial medicine to be held in the Stevens hotel Wednesday and Thursday under the sponsorship of the American Mutual Liability Insurance company. Problems to be discussed will include the role of the physician in speeding the return of disabled soldiers and sailors to useful employment.

HAND GARDINER HOSPITAL OVER TO ARMY CORPS

Dedication ceremonies during which the Gardiner General hospital was turned over to the United States army medical corps were held yesterday afternoon on the hospital lawn at 1660 Hyde Park blvd. The hospital was dedicated in honor of Lt. Ruth M. Gardiner, army flight nurse, who was killed July 27, 1943, near Naknek, Alaska, while on a mission for the evacuation of wounded by air transport.

A portrait of Lt. Gardiner painted posthumously by Edmund Giesbert, Chicago artist, was unveiled and presented to the hospital. The portrait will be exhibited in the school lobby of the Art Institute from today thru next Saturday before it is permanently installed in the hospital. Lt. Gardiner, whose home was in Indianapolis, Ind., was the first American flight nurse to be killed in service in this war.

The Rev. Father Victor L. Goossens of Indianapolis, who confirmed Lt. Gardiner, discussed the nurse's life and her devotion to duty and country. Brig. Gen. Fred W. Rankin of the surgeon general's office and Col. Florence A. Blanchfield, superintendent of the army nurse corps, spoke on the contribution of women to war medicine. The 344th army service forces band from Fort Sheridan gave a concert.

CUT CIVILIAN USE OF EVAPORATED MILK AND BUTTER

Civilian supplies of butter, cheddar cheese, and evaporated milk will be smaller in the current July-September quarter than in the preceding three months, but allocations of other fats and oils, certain types of cheese and condensed milk will be larger, the war food administration said yesterday.

As previously reported by the WFA, butter allocated to civilians in this quarter will be reduced to 395,200,000 pounds from 432,000,000 in the April-June period. The agency explained the reduction is necessary because of the seasonal decline in milk production.

Other fats and oils, however, will be in better supply for civilians by about 43 million pounds. Excluding butter, 1,041,000,000 pounds of edible fats and oils have been allocated for consumption, compared with 998,000,000 pounds in the preceding three months.

The cheddar cheese allocation this quarter, the WFA said, is 103 million pounds.

SQUAD REVIVES GIRL.

Mary Lou Weber, 15, was revived by a fire department rescue squad yesterday after, she said, she had taken an overdose of aspirin to cure a headache. She came here recently from her home in Mississippi to visit relatives at 533 S. Lawndale av.

Caen and La Haye Fall to Allies—$150,000 Fire Destroys Plastics Plant and Lumber Yard

[Associated Press Wirephoto: From OWI.]

Second Lt. Sally Lou Strong, Waukesha, Wis., U. S. army nurse, ministers to wounded German prisoner being evacuated from Hospital Pasteur, Cherbourg, after city's capture.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Spectacular fire early last night in the plant of Boynton & Co., plastics manufacturers, 1725 Bosworth av., which caused damage estimated at $150,000. The plant and an adjoining lumber yard were destroyed as many volunteers among 5,000 watchers helped firemen fight blaze.
